FIRE AT REVERE HOUSE

A woman found asleep in a smoke-filled room was rescued by two young men today at a fire on the top floor of the reconstructed Revere House, in Bowdoin square. This was the second time the historic hostelry was visited by fire within nine months. The damage by today's fire was $5,000.

Last January the hotel was badly gutted and three women lost their lives. The fire today broke out in an unoccupied room on the top landing of the main building, fronting on Bowdoin square. The cause is not known. Roofers and other workmen were at work in that section of the building.

Only a few more days would have been required to complete the work of renovation due to the disastrous fire of last Winter.

The hotel has been remodeled, repainted and refitted from cellar to roof. Only a few minor changes remained on the top floor. The place was opened for business a few months ago.

At 12:45 today William Britt, who had a room on the top floor, discovered an unoccupied room in flames. He told Frank Santoro and then hastened to the headquarters of engine 4 around the corner in Bulfinch street. A still alarm was followed by an alarm from Box 28.

Thousands of spectators quickly gathered in the streets.

Britt and Santoro ran to the room adjoining and found the door locked. Through the keyhole they saw that the bed was occupied. They broke in and found a woman employee asleep and partly overcome by the smoke which filled the room. They carried her to a place of safety.

Four rooms were destroyed by today's fire and the new carpets and furnishings of rooms below were damaged.

Umpires—Dineen and Hart.
Attendance—5,000.

FENWAY PARK, Sept. 24.—The Red Sox were given a rousing welcome here today when they lined up against the New York Yankees in a double-header. Jake Stahl presented a patched-up lineup, but nevertheless he was confident that his team would make things interesting for Harry Wolverton's crew.

The Red Sox will take things easy for the remainder of the season, so that they will be in the best of condition when they clash with the Giants in the world series next month. Bill Carrigan and "Heine" Wagner will probably join the team tomorrow. Three two stars have been in New York sizing up McGraw's champions.

The first game was started at 1:30, so as to enable the players to finish the second contest before darkness called a halt.

FIRST GAME.

FIRST GAME.

New York—Midkiff shot the first ball past Wagner for one base. Chase sacrificed, Engle to Cady. Daniels tripled over Speaker's head, scoring Midkiff. Lelivelt walked. Simmons bunted along the first base line and beat it out, Daniels scoring. Hartzell hit past Hooper for three bases, scoring Lelivelt and Simmons. McMillan was called out on strikes. Williams went out, Wagner to Cady. FOUR RUNS.

Red Sox—Hooper was thrown out by Simmons, Yerkes hit to McConnell and died at first. After hitting numerous fouls Speaker was called out on strikes. NO RUNS.

SECOND INNING.

New York—Engle and Carrigan waited for McConnell's tap, to roll foul, but it stayed inside the line and was good for a hit. Midkiff bunted and Bedient threw him out. Yerkes ran in for the bunt and McConnell fell over him, both men sprawling on the ground. Cady threw to Engle, who covered second base, and Engle tagged McConnell as he scrambled to his feet, completing a double play, Bedient to Cady to Engle. Chase singled past Yerkes. Chase stole second, and when Carrigan's throw went wide and rolled to centerfield, Chase kept on third. Daniels was called out on strikes. NO RUNS.

Red Sox—Lewis flied to Lelivelt, Engle hit the top of the left field fence with a high one and took two bases. Cady walked. The game was suspended while Wagner was presented a huge silver loving cup. According to custom, Heinie then struck out. Carrigan forced Cady at second, Midkiff to Simmons. NO RUNS.

THIRD INNING.

New York—Lelivelt singled to left. Lewis fielded the ball slowly and caused the runner to try for two bases. He was nailed at second easily, Lewis to Wagner. Simmons singled past Yerkes. Hartzell singled along the third base line. McMillan flied to Hooper. Simmons stole third. Williams hit to Yerkes, who fumbled. The runner had plenty of time to reach first, but he stayed up and threw him out. NO RUNS.

Red Sox—Bedient hit to Midkiff, whose throw to first drew Chase off the bag. Hooper forced Bedient, Chase to McMillan, Yerkes hit to Simmons, and it looked like a sure out, but the ball took a funny bound over Simmons' head and was good for a base, Hooper taking third. Speaker lifted a high sacrifice fly to Daniels, scoring Hooper. Lewis doubled along the left field line. Engle flied to McMillan. ONE RUN.

FOURTH INNING.

New York—Henriksen took Hooper's place in right field. McConnell doubled along the right field line. Midkiff rolled a sacrifice along the first base line and Cady slipped him so hard with the ball that the runner fell flat on he face. McConnell took third on the out and scored when Chase dropped a single back of first base. Daniels flied to Speaker. Lelivelt bunted one in front of the plate and Carrigan threw him out. ONE RUN.

Red Sox—McMillan threw out Cady. Wagner singled to right. He stole second as Carrigan fanned, and on Williams' low throw kept on to third. Bedient was presented with a gold horseshoe when he came to bat. Wagner scored on a wild pitch. Bedient sustained precedent following presentations and struck out. ONE RUN.

FIFTH INNING.

New York—Simmons struck out. Bedient threw out Hartzell. McMillan singled to right. He stole second. Williams flied to Wagner. NO RUNS.

Red Sox—Henriksen flued to Lelivelt. Yerkes singled to centre. Speaker forced Yerkes, McMillan to Simmons. Speaker stole second. Midkiff threw out Lewis. NO RUNS.

SIXTH INNING.

New York—McConnell walked. Midkiff hit into a double play, Yerkes to Cady, Steve tagging McConnell on the base line. Wagner threw out Chase. NO RUNS.

Red Sox—McMillan threw out Engle. McConnell tossed out Cady. Wagner went out, McMillan to Chase. NO RUNS.

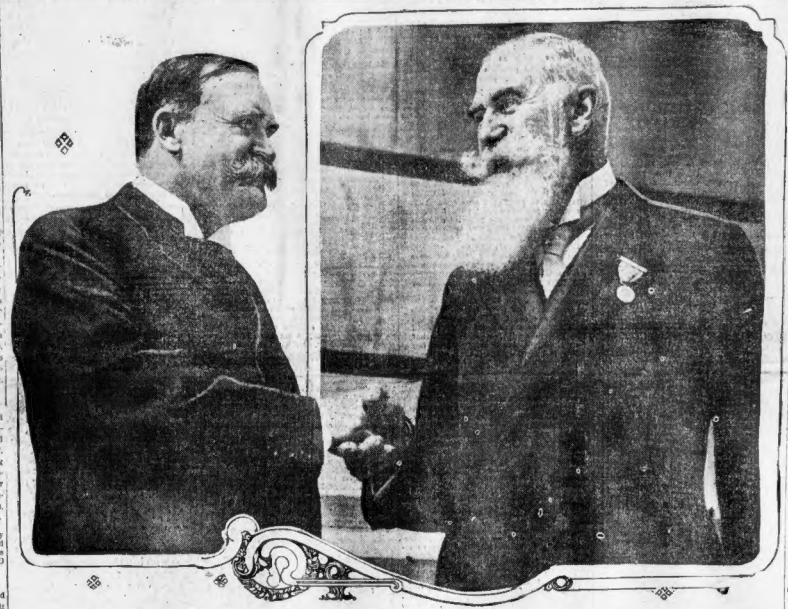
World Delegates to Chamber of Commerce Congress Welcomed by Governor and Mayor



Governor Eugene N. Foss welcoming M. Louis Canon-Legrand, president of the International Congress of Chambers of Commerce.

PRIMARY VOTE BIG; BETTING ON FOSS

Mayor Fitzgerald, in a statement this afternoon, declared emphatically that Governor Foss will carry Boston over Pelletier by at least 5,000 votes.

District Attorney Pelletier this afternoon made a wager of $75 to $100, put up by Representative Adolphus Burroughs of Boston, that he would win the Democratic nomination for Governor in today's primaries.

District Attorney Pelletier made a tour of inspection of every precinct in Ward 8 today in company with Lieutenant Rooney of the police assigned to the District Attorney's office. The visits of the District Attorney caused a report to spread throughout the ward that it was possible court proceedings might be taken against certain political leaders.

Unusual interest was taken in the primaries held today. All over the city and State political opinions and candidates instied to get the vote which was expected

Pelletier Wagers $75 to $100 That He Will Defeat Foss

District Attorney Pelletier, while making a tour of Ward 8 this afternoon, made a wager of $75 to $100, put up by Representative Adolphus Burroughs, of Boston, that he would win the Democratic nomination for Governor over Governor Foss in to-day's primaries.

The wager followed a challenge from Burroughs. As the District Attorney drew up in his automobile near the polling booth at Chelsea and Poplar streets, Dr. Martin Lomasney's word, Burroughs yelled:

"Oh, Joe, say, you haven't got a ghost of a chance."

"I'm going to win the nomination," retorted the District Attorney.

"I've got a hundred to your $75 to say that you won't win," yelled back Burroughs. "Or if you want bigger stakes, I've got $1,000 to your $700 that you will be the loser."

The defiance proved too much for the District Attorney. He dug down and from his purse counted out $75 in bills.

"I'll take you," he replied to Burroughs. The latter put his hundred, and the two found a stakeholder.

Then the District Attorney said he felt confident of victory in the primaries today.

CHELSEA GIRL KILLED BY AUTO

Five-year-old Helen Clark was struck and killed on Broadway, Chelsea, this afternoon by an automobile driven by Arthur Mitchell of No. 10 Dundee street, chauffeur for Nathan Eisemann of No. 629 Commonwealth avenue.

In the machine were Mrs. Eisemann and her daughter, Mrs. Sidney Bernheim.

Mitchell picked up the child in his arms and ran to the office of Dr. J. G. McPhail nearby, but the child was dead. Mitchell was arrested and locked up, sobbing bitterly, on a charge of manslaughter.

Mrs. Eisemann and Mrs. Bernheim stayed at the police station to telephone Mr. Eisemann, who hurried over to Chelsea to arrange bail for Mitchell.

Helen Clark lived at No. 735 Broadway, Chelsea.

According to Mitchell's tearful statement to the police, he was running the Eisemann car down Broadway slope, near Parker street, at moderate speed. Suddenly the little girl started to run across the street, directly in front of the car. She was caught by the machine, which tossed her several feet. She came down on her head.

Dr. McPhail said that the girl received a fracture of the skull. Death was probably instantaneous.

Patrolman Herbert Bradley went to Dr. McPhail's and arrested Mitchell. All went to the police station in the Eisemann car.

Mitchell was booked on a charge of manslaughter and was taken to a cell. Mrs. Eisemann and Mrs. Bernstein waited in the sergeant's room for Mr. Eisemann to arrive.

Mr. Eisemann is a wealthy wool merchant at No. 196 Summer street.

ROOSEVELT HAS NARROW ESCAPE

TUSLA, Okla., Sept. 24.—Colonel Roosevelt narrowly escaped being caught in the collapse of a grandstand during his stop here today.

Roosevelt had scarcely stepped from the platform after a fifteen minute speech when it began to crack and sway. He turned around just in time to see the middle of the platform go in with a crash. The Colonel waited until the dozen or so who had gone down with the platform were extricated, and then made his way back to his train.

FOREIGNERS FEAR CHINESE REBELS

FOO CHOW, China, Sept. 24.—Failure of government troops to arrive here has caused a reign of terror, as the rebel chief of police has armed all his malcontents and they are threatening foreigners. American merchants are arming employes, and if the situation becomes worse will stop business.

BIG BROKERAGE FIRM SUSPENDS

Stephen R. Dow & Co., stock brokers of No. 60 Congress street, have suspended business, announcement of the suspension being made to the Boston Stock Exchange today. The news caused surprise in the financial district.

Stephen R. Dow, head of the firm, made an assignment to Fred H. Williams. Mr. Dow has resigned as president and director of the various copper companies with which his name had been connected. It was learned the assignees could not estimate as yet the assets and liabilities. General Manager R. M. Edwards has been elected president of all the Dow companies, it was announced.

The companies with which Mr. Dow was connected were the Adventure Consolidated Copper Company, Algomah Mining Company, Caribou Copper Company, Elm River Copper Company, Franklin Mining Company, Indiana Mining Company, Mayflower Mining Company, North Lake Mining Company, Old Colony Copper Company and the Rhode Island Copper Company.

Mr. Williams, the assignee, says:

"I have just taken possession of the affairs of Stephen R. Dow & Co., and am having the books made up for the purpose of ascertaining the exact situation. I expect to make a statement as soon as the examination has been completed.

STOKES WILL FIGHT GRAHAM GIRL SUIT

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—W. E. D. Stokes, millionaire, who was shot by Lillian Graham and Ethel Conrad, today through his attorneys filed in the Supreme Court a notice that he would move for trial on the first Monday in October of the suit for $100,000 damages brought against him by Miss Graham. Stokes is determined to fight this suit to a finish.

MANY SPEECHES MARK BEGINNING OF SESSIONS IN COPLEY-PLAZA BALLROOM.

The International Congress of Chambers of Commerce opened in the Copley-Plaza ballroom at 10:30. The big hall easily accommodated the 800 delegates. The meeting was called to order by President Louis Canon-Le Grand.

George S. Smith, chairman of the executive committee of the Boston Chamber, greeted the delegates and introduced Secretary Frank Nagel of the Department of Commerce and Labor.

NAGEL CONGRATULATES BOSTON.

Secretary Nagel began by complimenting the congress and congratulating Boston for being selected as its meeting place.

"You are met to arrange rules of the great game of commerce as it is played between the nations. Despite the great volume of international commerce there is no international tribunal to regulate.

Ought to Confess.

"Our country ought to confess that it is not quite up to the standards that obtain in other countries. We are new and our efforts have been centred upon domestic affairs. But we are bound to recognize that we must take a larger view. But our own system of in-

PRIEST IS BEATEN BY HOLDUP GANG

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—A priest, a policeman and two sailors were injured in a battle with three hold-up men on the Hudson River waterfront today. The sailors were attacked and beaten unconscious with blackjacks. The Rev. Philip McGrath of the Catholic mission ran to the rescue and was also laid unconscious. Before he fell the priest blew a police whistle. Patrolman Brennan was knocked in the gutter and robbed of his cap and night stick. The hold-up men escaped.

WELCOME TO COMMERCE MEN

cessate relations is not dissimilar to the international problems which you meet.

"Now we have entered the international field, not only politically, but commercially, and we are eager with you to arrange rules.

"The old individualistic idea must be abandoned and co-operation is coming to be the rule. The spirit of co-operation is abroad. A wholesome, successful country today may justly rejoice in the success of other countries. Our security is the success of our neighbors.

Trend Toward Peace.

"If this congress should accomplish nothing else, the meeting here will have great results. Nothing is more dangerous than long-range shooting. Face to face we discover that perhaps we need not shoot at all.

"Today there is a trend towards universal peace. Today the causes of disagreement between nations are commercial. Commerce is still the pioneer of civilization. It is your privilege to arrange the affairs of commerce so there will be no friction.

"Intelligent self-interest is the foundation of real peace. What we want is such intimate relation that no controversies can possibly arise."

Governor Speaks.

Governor Foss, introduced as a great captain of industry by Mr. Smith, said:

"Time was when the ships of this State and city covered every sea. Today we have turned our attention to the development of our internal resources. Here you will find the home of the cotton industry, the boot and shoe industry, the great American industry, for with a small degree of protection we have been able to enter the world's markets.

"You will find here organizations which are conserving the national resources of the country.

"We wish you a pleasant and profitable stay and extend our warmest greetings."

Mayor Fitzgerald Talks.

Mayor Fitzgerald, welcoming the delegates on behalf of the city, said:

The theme of your deliberations is commerce. Was there a time when this word had derogatory or even sinister implications? Perhaps in some feudal period, before men had learned to respect the dignity of everyday, useful things. Happily, we breathe today the atmosphere of the twentieth century, in which the builder, the creator of wealth, is honored above the destroyer or the dreamer.

You who are here in council, merchants, bankers, manufacturers, engineers, operators of railroads, are the the providers of the human family. Your ancestry reaches back to the primitive ages. Beneath war and change, turmoil and migration, your patient industry has nourished and clad the race.

In America, gentlemen, you will find a nation well disposed toward the international movement, because we are, ourselves, a cosmopolitan people. Every one of the sixteen languages in which your program is printed is spoken in this city, and there are other parts of the country far more polyglot than Boston.

The extent of our territory and its diversities of climate and contour give us a continental breadth of view and forbid all provincial narrowness. It is hardly too much to say that as you continue your travels each of you will find something familiar, as well as many features that are new and strange, in the composite fabric of our national life.

But while other and more populous cities await your coming, it is our privilege to welcome you first and to receive you as our particular guests. We believe that Boston may possess some special attraction for men whose interests are commercial. Our settlement in the early seventeenth century is one of the romances of the sea, and all our history is salted with an ocean flavor.

To saturate our youth with this atmosphere a special school, the High School of Commerce, has been established, which trains boys for the commercial life. More than a thousand pupils attend this institution and by the generosity of some of our business men several of them are sent each year to study the products and business customs of other countries.

Mr. Filene Speaks.

Edward A. Filene, vice-president of the Fifth International Congress, delegate of the Boston Chamber of Commerce to the congress and president of William Filene's Sons Co., welcomed the delegates and presented M. Canon Legrand, president of the International Congress and its presiding officer. He said:

To welcome so many captains of industry and generals of finance from all parts of the world is a great pleasure and a great honor. You are the men who win the decisive victories of peaceful times. The intense interest which your coming has aroused in the United States is evidence that the fame of your victories has spread.

When we were last together in London, it was my honor to invite you, on behalf of the Boston Chamber, to visit the United States, a land which is really of your own making. This morning you are among your brothers who sailed westward to build a brotherhood nation. Here you will instantly recognize the colors of your homelands blending to make up the whole we call America. The forty or more nationalities represented by you are the real creators of the United States and its people, who are honored by your coming.

The State, the city, and the Chamber, see in the Congress a long step in the advance toward the day when no business men of all nations shall be able to apply internationally what we have individually learned from our own business—namely, that all business and all relations, to be permanent and really advantageous, must be mutually helpful.

The wives of the delegates were entertained at luncheon today by Mrs. Joseph B. Russell, wife of the president of the Boston Chamber. Before the luncheon they were the guests of Mrs. James J. Storrow and Mrs. J. Randolph Coolidge on an auto trip through Concord and Lexington.

After last night there should be no croakers left in Boston. Nobody who assisted at the gorgeous reception to the delegates to the International Congress will ever admit that the city is going backwards.

A few years ago such an affair would have been impossible. Even had a World Congress selected this city as a meeting place, there would have been no wonderful Copley-Plaza ballroom in which to receive them.

There were people at the reception last night who couldn't believe they were in Boston at all.

"I have seen such spectacles at the Paris Opera, and at the Inaugural Ball in Washington, but never did I hope to witness anything like this in Boston," said one prominent merchant, and there were many others who felt as he did.

NEW HAMPSHIRE DEMOCRATS FAVOR THE GRAND TRUNK

CONCORD, N. H., Sept. 24.—The Democratic State Convention included in its platform today the following resolution:

"We favor all increase and development in State transportational facilities which will be of benefit to the people."

This is intended as a friendly expression toward the Grand Trunk.

The platform names the high cost of living as the paramount issue, recommends expert supervision of highways, taking the same out of control of the Governor and Council; recommends the State Board of Agriculture be of real aid to the farmer, and opposes discrimination against union labor.

The convention assembled in Phoenix Hall, with 600 delegates present. Charles C. Hayes of Manchester was chosen chairman, and the following presidential electors were nominated: John C. Pattee, a wealthy farmer of Stratford; Roger C. Sullivan, Manchester cloak manufacturer; Fred H. Browne, city solicitor of Somersworth and former player on the Boston National League baseball team; Charles E. Tilton, former Harvard varsity oarsman.

DAKOTA' DRAWS PLAN OF HOME

By CLEMENT L. POLLOCK.

The report that reached East Cambridge today in some mysterious manner that Dakota Dan had committed suicide was dissipated when the ranchman walked into the courtroom and resumed the witness stand at 1 o'clock. He looked far from being a "dead one," and assured those who had heard the rumor that there would be a lot of others dead before he would take his life.

William R. Scharton, Dakota Dan's attorney, was indignant that the story should have gained circulation.

"They must have meant Fresno Dan," said Scharton. "He hasn't been here for two days. I am sorry that this foolish rumor got out. I'm going to look up its origin. Dan's friends will hear it and it will hurt their feelings."

Outlines Old Home.

Dakota Dan after taking the witness stand began a drawing of the Melrose home, which he says he left twenty-seven years ago. As he drew the interior of the house, which has come to be called "the house of mystery," he described his drawing in so low a tone that his words did not reach those who gathered for the continuation of the hearing before Master Percy.

Occasionally such words in a rumbling tone as these could be heard:

"The dining room table was here; the parlor was here; lamp was here and the kitchen here."

Dakota Dan's hand trembled so that his lines were unsteady. Once he explained:

"It has been reported that I had committed suicide, but I want to tell you I am going to live as long as any one connected with this case."

The Dakotan drew every room in the old home, placing furniture and pictures where they were when he left home.

"I remember the music box was here," said Dakota Dan, pointing to a spot on his drawing, "and father would get up in the morning and start it going, and there would march out soldiers and ships would be shown. The organ sat here, and sometimes when Mrs. Butler came I would pump it with my feet. Father brought that organ from the Philadelphia Centennial."

William C. Russell was in court today, but Fresno Dan was not present yesterday or today.

"Did they extend the old house when they altered it in 1872, except to add the steps and landing in the witches?" asked Mr. Mason.

"Well, I don't remember the bay window or the cupola in the old house."

The Dakotan said they built a new room in the cellar. Mr. Nason tried to keep the witness on the outside of the house, asking time and time again if the area of the structure were increased. But Dakota Dan misunderstood him and went ahead describing things in the house as they came to him.

INSURGENTS BESIEGE YANKEE OWNED TOWN

EL PASO, Tex., Sept. 24.—Mexican rebels under Antonio Rojas are besieging Pearson, the American-owned lumber town in Northern Chihuahua. Rojas has demanded the surrender of the town or the payment of $200,000. The garrison consists of only a small force of federals and an attack would imperil many Americans.

FORGERIES UPON LYNN PETITION

Many arrests are expected as a result of the discovery in Lynn today of many alleged forged signatures of prominent persons on petitions for a public investigation of the Public Property Commission by the Municipal Council.

The alleged forgery scandal was brought to light through the efforts of Mayor Connery, who submitted the matter to the police department for action.

Edward E. Strout charges Commissioner Herbert C. Bayrd of the Public Property Commission has permitted violations of the building laws and demands that the Municipal Council publicly inquire into the conduct of that department and insure more satisfactory administration.

Mr. Strout circulated petitions. He declared today that he knew nothing about any alleged forgeries of signatures. At the Mayor's office it is said that inquiry showed that at least 100 signatures had been forged on the petition in question. A dose narrests are looked for.

BULL MOOSE HAT FOR WOMEN THE LATEST

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—Ushered in with the early Fall millinery the Bull Moose hat made its appearance today. It is the first political campaign hat for women on record. The flaming red bandanna covering and the big brown moose head, striking a perky angle on the right-hand side, is calculated to win votes. A large round photograph of Roosevelt vies with the moose head for decoration.

JOHNSON TO SPEAK IN BOSTON TONIGHT

Governor Hiram W. Johnson, the Progressive candidate for Vice-President, planned to make his first speech in New England at Worcester today. He spent last night in Springfield. From Worcester he comes to Boston for a night meeting. Thus far the Governor's schedule calls for only three days' campaigning in New England. He hopes, however, to return later and make more addresses.

Filene's Automatic Bargain Basement

A Typical Programme for an Automatic Bargain Basement Lot

PROLOGUE. A hundred coats are seen in a manufacturer's workrooms. He has had a business reverse and needs immediate cash. Enter a basement buyer. The manufacturer and he agree upon a figure for the whole lot which although much under price, relieves the manufacturer's difficulty.

ACT I. The coats are one of hundreds of lots in the Automatic Bargain Basement. They have but 12 selling days at their first price so the buyer makes this price very low. As the days go by, they disappear. Only a few odd colors are left.

ACT II. 12 selling days have elapsed. The odd colors are still left, but their price is 25% less. Still they linger.

ACT III. 18 selling days have gone. Price 50% less now. A few sell. Nearly all gone.

ACT IV. 24 selling days have passed. All but one coat has sold. It's price is 75% less than that of its mates who were sold at their first price. Forsaken by its early comrades it spends its last days among countless new lots that have since come to the basement.

ACT V. 30 selling days have passed and the odd coat is still unsold. It is given to a charitable institution. As the curtain falls the last of the lot finds itself finally of service, for it is of help to a woman who might not otherwise have had a coat.

EPILOGUE. Every basement lot goes through this same programme. It must be a bargain and sell quickly or the price goes lower and lower, and we lose heavily.

Wellesley Girls Are Back; Find Railroad Has Become Gallant

Girls returning to Wellesley College, where the new term began today, found the New York Central Railroad, with more gallantry than a corporation is supposed to possess, is extending the Boston Albany station platform at Wellesley 300 feet, so the collegians will not have to enter and leave trains from the roadbed.

Today the little Wellesley railroad station was overflowing with college girl trunks and suit cases. Baggage was piled into the station, leaving only a pathway to the ticket office. The platform was buried in trunks and bags. All the expressmen that could be found in town were straining every muscle to transport the baggage to the college, urged on by the pleadings of the girls to "Hurry it, please."

Registration this year will be slightly more than 1,400, or about the same as last year. The college authorities are limiting attendance until more dormitories are provided. This year sees the beginning of the new plan of recitations on Mondays, with Saturday afternoons off, instead of the whole of Monday free.

PRINCETON MEN CHEER WILSON

PRINCETON, N. J., Sept. 4.—Governor Wilson carried to the polls today his fight against James Smith, Jr., who is trying to be returned to the United States Senate. He cast ballot No. 9 in the sixth precinct of Princeton for William Hughes, Smith's most formidable opponent, and before voting at the primaries he arraigned Smith as the agent of the corruption corporations.

In a speech before several hundred Princeton students the Governor declared that Smith was a non-partisan boss, working only for the interests of his client, and that he was supported whenever Governor Wilson had fought him by Republican newspapers.

Governor Wilson came to Princeton from Princeton Junction by automobile and was escorted to the polling place by 400 students, headed by a brass band and a snare drum, singing a jolly, rollicking melody with these words:

"Whoop her up for Woodrow Wilson,
Whoop her up again,
Whoop her up for Woodrow Wilson, Jolly set of men!
Whoop her up for Woodrow Wilson,
Whoop her up again
With the Tiger, sis boom, ah—h—h."

At the polling place they demanded a speech. Governor Wilson told the boys he would not be permitted to speak within 100 feet of a polling place. They promptly led him to the steps of the Second Presbyterian Church.

Morgan's Niece in Romance Sails as Bride to England

LT. DAVIDSON, CANOPIC OFFICER, AND HIS BRIDE

Photographed today on the Arabic just before sailing to live in England.

Miss Goodwin First Met Lieut. Davidson, Royal Navy Reserve, in Mediterranean Cruise.

A romance began two years ago on board the White Star Liner, Canopic, resulted in the sailing today on the Arabic for Liverpool, of Lieutenant H. L. Davidson, second officer of the Canopic, and his bride, who was Miss Jennette Goodwin.

Davidson is a member of the British Royal Navy Reserves. His bride is the daughter of a Hartford clergyman and the niece of J. Pierpont Morgan. The bride is wealthy and has traveled a great deal abroad.

Davidson reached Boston last Wednesday on the Arabic, getting here twelve hours ahead of schedule because Captain Finch hurried along to get the anxious young man to the side of his bride-to-be. They were married the next day at Hartford.

Officers of the Canopic, which is at this port, went to the Arabic today to wish Davidson and his bride bon voyage. Mrs. Davidson was radiantly happy.

"No, I do not regret giving up my home in America under the circumstances," said the bride. "I am very happy. I am delighted at the prospect of spending the Winter in southern England. I understand the Winters in that section are very enjoyable.

"I have spent more of my time during the past six years in Europe than in America, but I have never been in southern England during the Winter. I met my husband on a trip to the Mediterranean two years ago. We became greatly interested in each other at once."

Many floral pieces were sent aboard the ship for the happy young couple. They go to Portsmouth, England, where Davidson will put in the two months required biennially in the Royal Navy.

JUDGE'S RULING FAVORS ETTOR

Joseph J. Ettor and Arturo Giovannitti, whose trial in connection with the murder of a woman at the time of the Lawrence strike, begins Monday, gained a point today when Judge Quinn of Salem handed down an order directing the State to furnish certain particulars of the charges against the accused men to their attorneys.

The two men were indicted for inciting the people at various times and places to rioting that resulted in the shooting of Annie Lopezzi.

Following is the decision of Judge Quinn.

On the motion of Joseph J. Ettor and Arturo Giovannitti for a bill of particulars as to the third and sixth counts in the indictment, it is ordered that the Commonwealth on or before Friday, September 27, 1912, furnish the defendants with a bill of particulars, certifying the dates and places between the 13th and 29th days of January, 1912, that anything was said or done which the Commonwealth claims tend to show that the defendants, Ettor and Giovannitti, or either of them, did incite, procure, aid, counsel, hire or command the commission of the felony therein set forth.

J. J. QUINN, S. S. C.

John P. S. Mahoney of Lawrence and former District Attorney W. Scott Peters represent respectively Ettor and Giovannitti. The trial begins Monday before Judge Quinn in Salem. District Attorney Henry C. Attwill will prosecute the case. Widespread interest has been manifested in the coming trial.

Counsel for Joseph Caruso and Salvator Scutio, charged with doing the actual killing, had requested that the charges against their clients be made more specific. As counsel for Caruso and Scutio were not present today, Judge Quinn said he would reserve his finding on their request.

Foss Champion Routs Miss Hughes, Making Plea for Pelletier

Miss Sally Hughes, the suffragist worker, met an unexpected opposition when campaigning for Pelletier in front of the Brookline Town Hall today. Miss Hughes arrived in the morning and began buttonholing every man, asking whether he was going to vote for Foss or Pelletier.

If the man said "Pelletier" Miss Hughes smiled and let him pass without argument. But if the man said "Foss," then Miss Hughes pleaded with him as long as the man would listen.

Suddenly a prominent Brookline man dashed up in his automobile. He was accosted by Miss Hughes with pleas for Pelletier. The man, instead of brushing by, halted, turned and unlimbered a flood of reasons why he was going to vote for Foss. Miss Hughes suddenly excused herself, saying it was time for her to go to luncheon.

FIRE
Entire Stock Damaged by Smoke
Store Closed

Sunday morning, at 3:30 o'clock, the Fire Department was called to Washington, Hanover and Elm Streets. Vorenberg's basement was ablaze. The fire had been smouldering probably for hours and the entire building was so densely filled with smoke that the firemen had all they could do to effect an entrance, and had to work in relays to extinguish the fire.

The conflagration started by the crossing of the electric wires near the Receiving Room which was packed with new Merchandise ready for the Vorenberg Fall Opening. The entire stock on the various floors was affected only by smoke.

Insurance Companies' Loss! Your Gain

Insurance adjustments have been made. We decided to throw the entire stock of high grade Men's, Boys', Women's, Misses' and Children's Wearing Apparel on the market, regardless of cost or value. All our employees are now busily engaged in marking this new Fall merchandise to prices that will create an extraordinary sensation. Thursday—the doors will be thrown open to the public. The people of Boston will then have the greatest money-saving opportunity to buy new Fall and Winter apparel ever presented by any firm in America.

"JUNE BRIDE" TUNEFUL SHOW

By NICHOLAS YOUNG.

Had "The June Bride" belonged to any other month she would have fallen just as softly on the ear, which is a point in favor of Edmund Eysler's score. This first of the reunited Weber and Fields' productions ventured upon its metropolitan career at the Majestic Theatre last evening, and if you are musically inclined you will have no difficulty in getting on friendly terms with that part of the affair supplied by the composer.

But the music deserved a better fate than to be thrust upon untrained and unmusical voices for interpretation. While the entertainment was pleasing and revealed intelligent and artistic stage management, the real beauty of Mr. Eysler's composition was entirely lost in the somewhat feeble attempts of the masculine members of the cast to fathom its intricacies. With a cast of singers "The June Bride" would easily settle down to permanent prosperity, for it tells a pretty story in a quaint way, has unexcelled opportunities for good comedy, is well staged, and best of all is surrounded with music that has infectious melody.

Dainty and Attractive.

With so much in its favor "The June Bride" should be easily shaken into a substantial success. But more than anything else, it needs a few human voices to match the delicious Eysler music.

Messrs. Weber and Fields, by importing "The June Bride," step boldly into the ranks of those impresarios who take musical entertainment seriously. There is nothing in "The June Bride" to remind you of the terrible burlesque past of its professional parents. Last evening's audience found the piece dainty and attractive, and expressed its appreciation for some of the song numbers with more real feeling than is usually discovered in a Boston theatre. There was no doubt, however, that the music of "The June Bride" reached out to friendly hands, and was the real cause of the enthusiasm.

HAZEL KIRKE

AMELIA STONE

Two of the numbers hit you squarely in the ear. They were "Haven Tresses and Golden Locks," sung by Arthur Lipson and Arthur Aylesworth, and "My Girl of Dreams," sung by Mr. Aylesworth and Amelia Stone. "Wonderful, Wonderful Tulip Land" was another fetching song, and it was splendidly handled by Hazel Kirke, whose voice, more than any other in the company, appeared at home with the Eysler composition. The vocal honors of the evening were easily Miss Kirke's, although Miss Stone and Flavio Arcaro stood faithfully alongside and answered every call to song.

Of the men Mr. Lipson exhibited a voice that was plainly overworked, while Mr. Aylesworth, fresh from dramatic acting, was clearly out of his sphere as an operetta hero. Mr. Aylesworth's sense of humor that made him one of the delights of "Over Night," when it played at the Shubert a year ago, was not on the job last evening. Ernest Truax and David Torrence were mildly amusing as common folk trying to break into aristocracy.

"The June Bride" is rich in opportunities and, properly guided, should prove a sound investment for its producers. Certainly nothing more agreeable than Mr. Eysler's music has been found on the Boston stage this season. But the vocal side of the company could safely stand reorganization.

Under any circumstance the music is worth hearing.

GOOD SKETCHES ON KEITH'S BILL

Sam Chip and Mary Marble, in their sketch, "The Land of Dykes," had the headline position on the bill at Keith's Theatre. Miss Marble is Meenie Hoffmeister, granddaughter of Jan Van Dyke, burgomaster, and of course she falls in love with Sam Chip, who, in the play, is none other than William Klomp, gardener's assistant and the burgomaster's all-around handy man. It is a pretty sketch, well acted from start to finish and it scored heavily.

Miss Lillian Ashley in songs and stories also made a hit. Miss Ashley, early in her act, portrays the bashful school girl called upon both to sing and to recite in the presence of visitors. Then later she appears in a little telephone monologue, which is easily the best of many clever things in her act.

Tony Hunting and Corrine Francis in "The Love Lozenges" presented a new sketch that gave opportunity for some singing and some extremely artistic dancing by Mr. Hunting. Another team that won applause was the Otto Brothers, two Boston boys, in a German dialect skit entitled "Murdering the King's English to the Queen's Taste." They carry a line of brand new jokes.

Another team coming to B. F. Keith's for the first time is that of Harry Tighe and Edith Clifford in "Vaudeville Tidbits." Hickman Brothers & Company gave an amusing sketch in "A Detective Detected."

MacMahon, Diamond and Clemons proved an unusually clever trio, while Honors and LePrince are French eccentric comedians. Also upon the program are the great Tornadoes, six aerial athletes.

Globe Theatre.

Since the Globe Theatre has been booking "big time" vaudeville acts, patrons of that house have been getting more than their money's worth. Yesterday's new program the Undine troupe of European novelty artists easily ran away with first honors, although there were other popular features in the bill. A new picture program was also included in the day's program. The special nights at the Globe are Tuesday, when the amateurs are given a chance to distinguish themselves, and Wednesday and Friday, when the Country Store is added to the regular performance.

"IS MATRIMONY A FAILURE?" GIVEN AT CASTLE SQ. THEATRE

An appreciative audience greeted the farce "Is Matrimony a Failure?" as presented by the capable stock company at the Castle Square Theatre. There is a torrent of jokes, the excuses of husbands, the petulance of wives, the absurdity of masculine housekeeping, the meddling of mothers-in-law and the reluctance of each to a conjugal quarrel to be the first to give in all, being portrayed.

Variety is imparted to the subject by presenting different modes of reconciliation, and the lines are often irresistibly amusing.

The farce was well cast and each member of the company contributed effectively to a performance which demanded excellence as a whole.

Mr. Craig impersonated a good-natured husband with engaging suavity. Miss Young was appropriately petulant as one of the recalcitrant wives. Mr. Monroe was excellent as the amorous superintendent of schools. Mr. Trader gave a clever characterization of the gardener.

Miss Browne was forceful as the distressful mother-in-law, and Miss Leavitt pleased as Sadie Ringler. Mr. Meek played Paul Barton, the trouble-making lawyer, with evident enjoyment.

Orpheum Theatre.

Nothing could have been more popular with the audience than Pattee's diving girls, who appeared as the chief attraction in the new bill at the Orpheum Theatre yesterday. But this was only one of a dozen other spirited vaudeville acts that made up the program. As this week begins the third season of the Orpheum under its present management, unusual preparations were made to present an attractive list of entertainers.

is important to you.

Commonwealth of Massachusetts
Suffolk, ss. Boston, June 18, 1912

Affidavit

James R. Nicholson, President of the Harvard Brewing Company, Lowell, Mass., first being sworn on oath says:

That every pound of malt that is used in brewing Harvard Export (Green Label) Beer is of the best quality that is produced.

Every pound of it is barley malt of the best quality. There is not a pound of malt made from wheat or oats or any other cereal, excepting barley, used in the production of this beer.

In witness thereof, the said James R. Nicholson has hereunto set his hand and seal the 18th day of June, A. D. 1912.

James R. Nicholson

Commonwealth of Massachusetts
Suffolk, ss. Boston, June, 18, 1912.

Then personally appeared the above named James R. Nicholson, to me known to be President of the Harvard Brewing Company, and made oath that the foregoing affidavit by him subscribed is true before me.

G. Pelham Davis
Notary Public.

Oat malt and wheat malt are much cheaper than the Choice Barley Malt we use. They are pure materials and there is nothing objectionable in their use except that it is not possible to produce with them a beer with the stability and flavor of Harvard Export Beer.

We pay the extra cost of Choice Barley Malt that may have the stability and the flavor that have assisted in giving it the wonderful reputation that it has today.

Another Big Lot of Norfolks

Got here just in the nick o'time to fill out the lines depleted by last week's heavy selling. And we know where there's plenty more when these are gone.

Perhaps you've noticed that it's characteristic of us to be always ready with what the public wants. Remember the Plaid-back Overcoats last winter and the Norfolk Suits last summer?

History has repeated itself. Norfolks are scarce as hen's teeth most everywhere but here. Some might want to take advantage of that fact and boost the price, but we mark them just as low as if they were a drug on the market.

For instance, here are Norfolks—some with leather buttons—in lively new shades that will hit you right where you live and all tailored to the Queen's taste at

$18 and $20

Other Norfolks in grays, browns and blue serges—all wool of course, and hand tailored—are selling here at the Summer St. prices of Gaiety Theatre.

"The Jolly Follies" gave burlesque patrons something to think about at the Gaiety Theatre yesterday. The chief interest of the first day's audiences was found in the smart fashion in which the entertainment was handled, for it was a swiftly moving show with much stress laid upon the young women members of the company. Naturally these were both good looking and plentiful. "The Jolly Follies" is especially inviting.

National Theatre.
"The Girl of the Orient," an operetta with 25 people, was given as the main feature in the new program at the National Theatre yesterday. This was only one of many other attractive numbers, among which were Madeleine Nash, a Boston girl with a sweet voice, and Armstrong and Ford, two lively funny men. Another feature was the singing of the Red Sox cheering song.

New Palace Theatre.
An especially attractive motion picture subject will be added to the program at the New Palace Theatre tomorrow. It will be "The Massacre of the Santa Fe Trail," a stirring drama of western life, full of human interest and thrilling incidents.

Scenic Temple.
It being anniversary week at the Scenic Temple, the new bill yesterday was arranged with special reference to that event. There were vaudeville and pictures.

Howard Athenaeum.
Pat White has returned to the Old Howard. He arrived yesterday with "High Life in Burlesque" and managed to make himself entertaining.

Hub Theatre.
New pictures and illustrated songs made up a long program at the Hub Theatre yesterday.

Casino Theatre.
Jennon's "Columbia" burlesquers gave two performances at the Casino Theatre yesterday. Charles Howard was the chief fun maker of the company.

Next Week's Bills.
"The Talker" will come to the Hollis next Monday.
"Robin Hood" will be the attraction at the Boston next week.
"Oliver Twist" is announced as next week's offering at the Plymouth.
John Craig and his company at the Castle Square Theatre will do "Sherlock Holmes" next week.

Shows That Remain.
"The Greyhound" is now in its final week at the Boston Theatre.
Rose Stahl and "Maggie Pepper" continue at the Park Theatre.
"A Butterfly on the Wheel" began a new week at the Shubert last evening.
"The Quaker Girl" is gaining in popularity at the Colonial Theatre.
"The Woman Haters' Club" is playing to capacity audiences at the Tremont Theatre.
Violet Mascotte and her "Review Girls" are still at the Bowdoin Square Theatre.
The convict ship Success continues its exhibition of marine and prison relics at Warren Bridge.
The Dunbar pictures are now on their last week at Dunbar Temple.

GREAT DEMOCRATIC VOTE CAST AT PRIMARIES

FINAL STATEMENTS OF CANDIDATES

To the Boston AMERICAN.

I have never felt any doubt about the primaries, and I am now convinced that I shall receive the strong endorsement of the Democratic Party today.

—Eugene N. Foss.

"I don't know how the vote is going in the city, because my entire attention today is being given to Ward 8. But I am confident of the result, and I expect to sweep the city and State."

—Joseph C. Pelletier.

to be heavier than at last year's primaries. Governor Foss was picked as the winner over District Attorney Pelletier for the Democratic nomination for Governor. In the hotels odds of 10 to 7 that Governor Foss would be renominated were offered.

Special interest was taken in the District Attorney's attitude with reference to Ward 8 today. At each polling place in the ward Mr. Pelletier stationed a police inspector. It was explained this was for the purpose of keeping tabs on the workers around the various booths.

"I am not here on political, but on official business," declared the District Attorney to an AMERICAN reporter. "I don't know how the vote is going in the city, because my entire attention today is being given to Ward 8. I am confident of the result, and I expect to sweep the city from end to end."

"I haven't paid a worker in the city—not one. But I'm going to win, nevertheless. The people are with me in this fight, and in addition to sweeping the city I shall carry the rest of the State. I shall win by an overwhelming majority.

"The reason that I have no paid workers out in the city is because I have not the money with which to pay them. Why shouldn't they have the money on the other side, with the Boston Elevated Railroad to back them?

"I shan't leave Ward 8 until the polls close today. I'm not here playing politics, either, but I am here on official business connected with the District Attorney's office."

Mr. Pelletier had Inspector Patterson from police headquarters on duty at the Minot street booth. Patterson took notes occasionally. The workers appeared very active, would buttonhole men as they entered the street and walk to the polling place. It was claimed that the workers would point out certain names on the sample ballot posted in front of the booth.

Mayor Fitzgerald in a statement this afternoon, declared emphatically that Governor Foss will carry Boston over Pelletier by at least 5,000 votes. He said:

"The work the Governor has done in the past few days has counteracted any Pelletier sentiment that might have arisen. The Governor will carry Boston by at least 5,000 votes. This means, of course, that a victory for Governor Foss, on this, his fifty-fourth birthday, is assured."

Throughout the State, according to early reports to political headquarters, the voting on the Democratic side was above the normal. In the South Boston wards, a record-breaking vote was expected, chiefly because of local contests. The red-hot contest between the Governor and District Attorney meant an unusually good Democratic vote in Boston, it was said.

Light Republican Vote.

There was a very light vote on the Republican side. This was said to have been due to the advice of the Bull Moose leaders to their following to stay out of the primaries. It was predicted that Colonel Everett C. Benton might carry Boston by a slight majority, while former Speaker Joseph Walker was expected to develop his strength outside this city.

The vote in the State primaries of 1911 was:

REPUBLICAN.

Frothingham	66,284
Walker	28,277
White	19,046
Total Republican vote	113,607

DEMOCRATIC.

Foss	64,596
Hilgen	5,116
Total Democratic vote	69,712

Hitch in Ward 9.

The only hitch reported in the early hours of the balloting in Boston was in Precinct 2, Ward 9, a Democratic stronghold. No Republican ballots had been provided. Enough Republican ballots were borrowed from Precinct 4 in the ward to this over until the requisite number could be forthcoming from the State House.

Martin M. Lomasney was not at his usual headquarters in Precinct 1, Ward 8, today. He remained at the Hendricks Club, feeling confident his ward would stand by Governor Foss.

At 10 o'clock 126 votes had been cast at Precinct 1 in Ward 8. None had been challenged up to that hour. The total vote in the precinct at last year's primaries was 227.

Foss Voted at 9:10.

Governor Foss cast his vote at 9:10. This was rather late for the energetic Governor, but he was tired out by long and late hours campaigning and slept until 8:30. He drove up to the Bowditch School on Green street, Jamaica Plain, in Ward 22, with Mrs. Foss, and was photographed as he entered the voting place. Another picture of him was taken as he walked out to get into the machine.

Governor Foss was asked as to how he regarded the situation from his standpoint as a candidate.

"I never felt more confident of victory in my life," said the Governor with emphasis. "I am certain of being nominated. That is about all I care to say about the matter, young man."

This was the Governor's fifty-fourth birthday. Many of his friends remembered him with congratulations, but there was no formal celebration of the event.

Mayor Fitzgerald is especially prominent this Fall in the State campaign, owing to his candidacy for the United States Senate. Without the support of any of the city bosses except Martin F. Lomasney, it is a question as to how much of the Democratic vote of Boston he and Governor Foss can control as against Pelletier.

The most conspicuous feature of the Republican contests was the entire lack of interest shown. A small vote was expected, especially in view of the weather. The only issue of importance is the race for the Republican nomination for Governor between former Speaker Joseph Walker and Colonel Everett C. Benton, and the result was much in doubt.

There were over 3,000 names of candidates on the ballots in the State elections today. The Socialists had tickets in the field. The Bull Moose party is not represented, though the leaders were closely watching today's results.

There was considerable local rivalry all over Massachusetts in the Congressional and Legislative campaigns.

Wards 1 and 2.

It was machine against anti-machine in East Boston in the Democratic primaries. A heavy vote was polled. Thomas Mansfield and William McClellan, former Democratic City Committeeman, directed the machine campaign. Thomas J. Giblin, candidate for ward committeeman, was in charge of the antis.

In Ward 1 the fight for the Senate nomination between Dr. Edward G. Granger and Joseph Cahill was hot. In both 1 and 2 there was a warm battle on between the two Congressional aspirants, John J. Walsh of East Boston and William F. Murray, the Charlestown Congressman.

Wards 3, 4 and 5.

The vote in Charlestown (Wards 3, 4 and 5) appeared to be considerably heavier than that of last year. These wards are Democratic.

Wards 13, 14, 15, 16.

South Boston flocked to the primary polls early. Democrats familiar with the situation in South Boston declared that the district would go for Foss by a big vote.

The principal contest was between Senator Powers and Representative William F. Hickey.

In Ward 13, Representative William J. Sullivan and Representative Lee McCullough were opposed by James J. Twohig and William L. Newton. In Precincts 6 fight was between Representative John Murphy, Robert Ward, William S. Cronin, James M. Keyes and Thomas Carey, and in Fifteen John J. Lydon and Representative Michael J. Reddy were in one of the most exciting contests in years. The other candidates for the nomination from the ward were Dr. John J. Creed, Will m E. Hickey and Joseph O'Mara.

Election Officer on Ballot.

After having served as an election officer for four hours in the Hugh O'Brien schoolhouse, Ward 17, Daniel J. Sullivan of No. 126 Hampden street, Roxbury, was removed when it was discovered that his name was on the ballot as a candidate for the ward committee. Under the law no man who is a candidate may serve as an election officer.

The complaint was made by Congressman Curley, and Warden William Hoar, after investigating, discharged Sullivan. Charles Simpson was appointed to fill the vacancy. Sullivan was appointed today in Precinct 8 to fill a vacancy at the request of Senator Joyce. Warden Hoar in commenting on the incident, said:

"My attention was directed to Sullivan's name on one of the delegations, and after looking up the law on the point, I had to let Sullivan go. I will report the matter to the Election Commissioners."

Voting started off with a rush in Ward 17. Before the voting booths were opened there were lines of men about the entrances. Congressman James M. Curley, head of the Ward 17 Tammany Club, was on the job early, directing the work of his lieutenants. So was Senator Thomas M. Joyce, leader of the anti-Curley forces. It was predicted by Curley and Joyce that there would be a record-breaking vote.

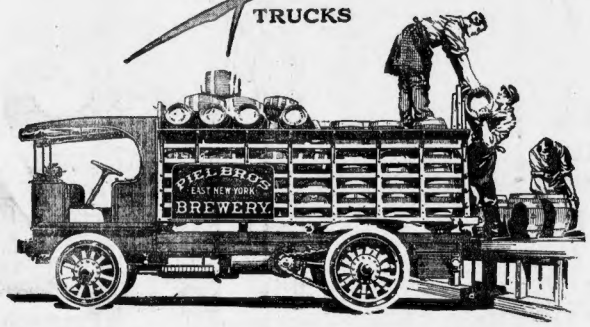
Garford TRUCKS



How to Measure the Day in and Day Out Commercial Value of a Motor Truck

A TRUCK, like every other commercial necessity, should be purchased on the basis of its serviceable worth. In order to be absolutely certain of economy in operation and everlasting service you must get right down to construction facts. You must analyze. Find out what it can do and why. This is purely a matter of analysis—of digging below the surface of the outer body and carefully weighing the vital construction and chassis facts. Here lies the good or the bad, the worth or the worthless, the practical or the impractical, of the modern gasoline motor truck. Tackle the investigation of motor trucks as you do other things necessary to the progress, promotion, efficiency and welfare of your business. Analyze!

Consider trucks as you do the installation of traveling cranes or locomotives; big dredging outfits or steam shovels; fermenting tubs or storage vats; automatic machinery or drill presses. Buy your trucks as you do cement and steel. Analyze! Get down to the basic facts. Find out the essential things, and see if they fit, and can serve the requirements of your business. Analyze, investigate, scrutinize, test, inspect. Assemble the final result and you are bound to get a pure, unadulterated, cold dollar for dollar commercial value.

Why the Garford Truck Can Do More in Less Time—for Less Money—than Any Other Truck Made

The few following facts are your guide—your aid. Read these important fundamentals over carefully. They explain the construction features, and commercial worth of the Garford Truck—the most advanced truck made.

The Garford Truck is a ten year development. In it is incorporated everything that is modern, practical and economical. It is built, primarily, with an eye to business requirements.

The frame of the Garford Truck is made of pressed steel, ordinarily truck frames are made of the cheaper channel iron material. But pressed steel is stronger. It will stand more and wear longer. The Garford frame is reinforced with five sturdy cross sections, others average only two to three cross sections. The Garford is operated at much less expense than other similar trucks.

Scores of well known concerns will confirm this. Our larger trucks run from five to six miles to the gallon of gasoline, as against two to three miles of the average truck. The Garford motor is of unusual strength and huge power. It is located by the side of the driver, not under him, nor out of reach.

It is always accessible. All adjustments can be made from the seat.

This also gives greater loading space, and reduces the weight on the rear axle, a very important point. The Garford Truck has a four speed transmission, which enables the driver to meet every traffic condition. The Garford Truck has a straight line drive. This makes possible a much smoother and more even pull, causing all strain on the frame, and eliminating that jerking motion, all of which reduces wear, and cuts down operating costs. We place only sixty per cent of the weight on the rear axle, where it belongs. This makes possible quicker loading, quicker handling, shorter turning radius, less wear on tires, less room required at the loading platform, yet you retain the full space for the load. Garford axles and steering knuckles are big and of generous dimensions. Garford springs are made of famous imported Krupp Steel, the best in the world.

These springs are unusually staunch and resilient. The cross spring is extra heavy. Garford headlights are protected, being sunk in the dash out of danger. This eliminates the chance of sudden breakage. The Garford torsion rod is a massive piece of work. It is practically indestructible. It will stand a fifty per cent greater strain than it will ever receive. The Garford is equipped with a positive automatic governor, which regulates the speed. This makes it absolutely impossible for drivers to race the motor. Once set, the truck cannot run above a certain number of miles per hour. This reduces greatly the wear and tear on the trucks, to say nothing of the tire expense. This brief chassis description explains the commercial superiority of the Garford Truck. It is the most advanced truck built. If your business requires trucks it will be worth your while to see this line at once. We make trucks of all kind of tonnage for every line of business. It has the fundamental strength, design and character to serve you efficiently and economically for years.

New Standard Oil Letters in Hearst's Magazine for October

The truth about Roosevelt-Archbold and further evidence of the Rockefeller Monopoly's investments in U. S. Senators, with Mr. Hearst's answer to Penrose and those false to the people's trust. On sale at the news stands this week.

Under the heading "More Standard Oil Letters," HEARST'S MAGAZINE for October, out this week, gives further astonishing evidence in the handwriting of John D. Archbold, his bought-and-paid-for agents and lawmakers, of the efficacy of Standard Oil cash in purchasing legislation and debauching legislators.

In the following letter an idea is given of the flirtation carried on between those "two pinelicel men." Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Archbold:

House of Representatives,
Washington, D. C.,
Wednesday, Jan. 6, 1904.

My dear Mr. Archbold:

Your telegram received. Sorry you can't run over for a day. Think it most important that you know the situation. The President was "delighted" to know that he had been misled as to the attitude of the S. O. Co., or rather "delighted" to know that the report was untrue. I think you can put in a very profitable hour over here. I know who told him, but I cannot repeat it.

I asked you and Mr. Rogers a question at the lunch table yesterday, that, if you chance to remember it, may afford a clew. I much prefer that you learn the situation from the President's own lips and not from me.

He urged strongly that you come over and meet him, and said he wanted you at luncheon where he could have a quiet talk with you. I cannot solve the motives of the ones who put him on the wrong track, but he was there and told me the story so far as I would let him do so; I finally said, "Please do not tell me, but if Mr. Archbold comes over you tell him."

In official life the invitation of the President is regarded in the nature of a command, and our friend probably construes it so, as strongly as ngone.

Should you wish to meet him, or wish not to do so, please tell me, and I will make excuse or arrangements as you indicate.

If you can't run over this week, can you come next? You will get a first-class reception and will have a great surprise. I shall keep track of matters here and will advise you of any matters of general interest. The puzzle, however, is no longer a Washington but a New York one, and the New York situation is Greek to me.

Please command me in any way, and believe me, sincerely yours,

JOS. C. SIBLEY.

The "book business" fetched down the game the very first shot. You had better read at least the Files of those volumes to refresh your memory before you come over. The boy has just told me you would call me up 7 o'clock on 'phone.

J. C. S.

In another letter to Archbold, dated Washington, November 25, 1903, and marked personal and confidential, Sibley says in part:

My dear M. A.—A "Rep." U. S. Senator came to me today to make a loan of $1,000. I told him I did not have it, but would try and get it for him and would let him know in a day or two. Do you want to make the investment? He is one who will do anything in the world that is right to his friends if ever needed. Please telegraph me YES or NO.

Likewise is given a facsimile of Senator Boies Penrose's receipt to Archbold for the $25,000 certificate of deposit sent to him on October 13, 1904.

The notable fact is shown that this receipt is written from the Republican State Committee headquarters of Pennsylvania and signed by Penrose as chairman of the State Committee of Pennsylvania and was therefore not, as Penrose maintained, used for the Roosevelt campaign.

EX-JUDGE GROSSCUP JOINS BULL MOOSE

CHICAGO, Sept. 24.—Peter S. Grosscup, former judge of the United States Circuit Court, has joined the Bull Moose party. The attitude of the party toward the trust question was what attracted the former jurist, he says.

JORDAN MEETS DEATH BRAVELY

Chester S. Jordan, the mother-in-law of Jesse L. Livermore, the Wall street millionaire cotton broker, was electrocuted at 12:09:13 this morning in the electric chair in the State Prison in Charlestown for the murder of his actress wife, Honora Jordan, at their home in Somerville on September 1, 1908.

He entered the death chamber at 12:08:05, and within one minute and eight seconds the electrodes had been applied, straps fastened and Jordan was dead. He walked to the chair unaided and unmoved. G. Lenard McNeil, a Christian Science reader, who acted as his spiritual adviser, accompanied him.

An hour before his death he sent word to Warden Bridges that he wanted to talk with Sheriff John R. Fairbairn of the East Cambridge Jail, in whose keeping he had been for four years, while a fight was being made to save his life.

The sheriff agreed to visit the doomed man. Shortly after 11 last night he arrived at the prison and was given the message. He was escorted to the death cell by a guard. To Sheriff Fairbairn he said:

"Sheriff, I am ready to die. I hope that I have done some good in this world and that my death will do the world some good. I am glad that you came over to be near me at the end. I want to thank you for the many kindnesses while I was in your care. My parents are deeply grateful for the many courtesies that you have shown to them and to me. Thank you. Goodbye."

Less than an hour later Sheriff Fairbairn stood within a few feet of Jordan when he paid the penalty.

TAFT SENDS CABLE OF CONDOLENCE TO ALFONSO OF SPAIN

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—President Taft today sent a message of condolence to King Alfonso of Spain, on receipt of a cablegram announcing the death of his sister, Anna Maria Teresa.

The Spanish ruler's message follows:

President Taft:

Deeply grieved to announce to Your Excellency the sudden death of my dear sister, Infanta Maria Teresa.

The President's reply was as follows:

His Majesty, Don Alfonso XII., King of Spain:

Mrs. Taft and I offer Your Majesty our heartful sympathy in your deep sorrow. WILLIAM H. TAFT.

Ingersoll Watch Week
—AT—
RIKER-JAYNES DRUG STORES

This week is set aside in all our stores to feature that great American institution—the Ingersoll watch.

This Ingersoll has put the whole nation on schedule time.

Thirty million have been sold and 14,000 are being bought every day—more than all other watches put together.

Take an Ingersoll into your work with you.

Get one for your boy or girl going to school.

Its wonder is not its price, but its accuracy at a price so far below what accuracy costs in any other watch.

You probably never saw the full asorstment of Ingersoll models.

Look at any Riker-Jaynes window this coming week and you will see

Ingersolls for men Ingersolls for boys
Ingersolls for women Ingersolls for girls

thousands of Ingersolls on display.

"The Watch That Made the Dollar Famous"

Everybody knows the Dollar Ingersoll. When a man gets one, he gets one of the wonders of the age. Not quite so small as the models shown below but for all around every-day use it answers every practical requirement.

If all you want is the time, then all you want is the Dollar Ingersoll.

In nickel or gun metal finished cases $1.00

SMALLER INGERSOLLS

Thin Model "Eclipse"

Here's a new Ingersoll made on the popular thin pattern. It has a solid nickel case that wears a lifetime. Nickel or gun metal finishes..... 1.50

The "Junior," Small and Thin

There's a great demand for the small, stylish watch with the usual Ingersoll reliability at a small price. Here it is, and, besides being a gentleman's watch, it's the greatest ever for boys. Solid nickel case. Nickel or gun metal finishes. 2.00

Ladies Carry the "Midget" in Their Hand-Bags

Until the "Midget" Ingersoll came out there never was a really accurate lady's watch of moderate cost. Now women, too, are finding the comforts of knowing the time without the worry or expense of a delicate timepiece. It's becoming a national habit among women to carry the "Midget" in the hand-bag.

For girls it's the only watch.

For nurses it supplies a long-felt want for an accurate and inexpensive timepiece. Nickel or gun-metal finishes 2.00

An Ingersoll for the Desk

Although the Ingersoll is so inexpensive, it keeps such time that few can get any additional benefit from paying more. Hence it's the great timepiece for everyday work. The office man wants one, and we have a special desk watch at $1.25 that can be taken out of its stand and carried in the pocket..... 1.25

Ingersolls are also of unequalled utility and satisfaction for those in factories, shops and stores.

Every Ingersoll is guaranteed by us, as well as by the makers.

CUMMINGS IN COURT AGAIN

When Charles S. Cummings, the Boston note broker who is serving a term of from five to eight years in the Charlestown state prison for larceny in connection with the Framingham defalcation, two years ago, was taken to the East Cambridge court today and placed on trial on another charge of larceny, his friends hardly recognized him because of the change in his beard.

When Cummings was first in court he was a smooth-faced man—a dapper, shrewd looking business man. The second time he was seen in court he had grown a full beard. Today when he appeared it was found that he had grown a long mustache which is of reddish hue. He looked like a plainsman of the West of the Bret Harte fiction days.

Cummings was placed on trial before Judge Chase and a jury on the allegation that he stole a note valued at $4,246.40 belonging to the Holliston Savings Bank. Before the trial started the accused man chatted with Miss Susan Wentworth, his former stenographer. The first witness was Albert E. Phipps, the treasurer of the Holliston Bank.

Phipps' story was to the effect that the bank officers decided to buy some City of Lynn bonds and that a check was given to the American Banking Company for the purchase. It is charged that Cummings "banked the check" and that the savings bank got no bonds. Cummings was charged with the larceny of the check on the ground that he was treasurer of the banking company.

"Don't Hurry So," Says Mme. Jottrand

By SYBIL WARNE.

Make more out of your homes.
Don't be in such a hurry.
Don't make so many sacrifices for mere pleasures.

This is the advice of Mme. Emile Jottrand, the accomplished wife of Secretary Jottrand of the International Congress of Chambers of Commerce. The Jottrands come from Belgium. During her stay in Boston she has made it a part of her recreation to study the American people, and she feels that they are making too many sacrifices for mere pleasures. According to her, America must make more out of home life. She thinks that we spend too much time in hunting after money and getting pleasure in spending it.

American women are too attractive to her to be wearing themselves out on the wheels of mere fashion.

"Americans must not forget their home life. You are such a busy people. You rush at things. You want every one else to rush with you, but this rushing interferes with your homes," declared Mme. Jottrand.

"Since talking with one of your most intelligent citizens, he told me that Americans were not making as much of their home life as they should.

"It occurs to me that here is your great mistake. You like to make money and to spend it. You like big hotels with every conceivable improvement. You allow your family and one child to live in them, but this hotel life breaks in upon the homes.

"In my own country we would not think of going to a hotel with our families to live. We want our own homes, and we want to go into other homes.

"You know that I do not care for hotels at all. Even while staying here I would much prefer to be in some home instead of this nerve-breaking hotel existence.

"In going around your city one notices the apartment houses with your kitchenettes and all that sort of thing—people trying to live in three rooms. That is not my idea of home. You are making too many sacrifices for pleasures. You will do everything to be in the 'swim'—I think that they call it that in America. You must be near some excitement, because you live on excitement.

"American women are such noble creatures. I do think so much of them! But I pity them in this race to get all that is exciting.

"In my own country we make so much of the home. That's why I am talking this way.

"What I am saying is not in the way of criticism. Boston is too delightful a place to say a word against. Many have told me that the tendency in this country is to give up keeping house and go to a hotel to live. But herein you make your great mistake. America must make more out of the home life. You must sit down quietly like some of us foreigners in Europe, and take the world calmly. If I should keep up the pace that I have heard about American ladies I would just collapse.

"But don't be in such a hurry. Don't give up your home life. Make more out of it than you are doing. You are too attractive a people to be wearing yourselves out on the wheels of fashion."

MME. JOTTRAND, WIFE OF CONGRESS SECRETARY.

N. Y. ALDERMANIC PROBERS IN ROW

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—A fresh row and a bitter one broke out today in the aldermanic police graft investigation growing out of the murder of Herman Rosenthal and the subsequent inquiry, just as former Police Commissioner Cropsey, the star witness of the day, began his story on the witness stand.

Mr. Cropsey, who was ousted by Mayor Gaynor when he refused to appoint some two score men to the force after they had been certified by the municipal Civil Service Commission, testified several of the applicants he had kept off the police force when he learned they had been guilty of perjury and other crimes, subsequently were appointed by Commissioner Waldo.

The factional feeling which had been smouldering broke into flame when Frank J. Dowling, a Tammany man, a Gaynor defender and a minority member of the committee, angrily demanded:

"I am a minority member of this committee, but all I know about it is what comes here in public. We have never had any executive meetings. We want to know what is going on.

"We want to know where the money is going. We want to know where the copies of the daily minutes go."

Alderman Smith, another Gaynor defender, then in:

"There is an executive meeting of the committee every night, Mr. Dowling," he shouted, "but it is participated in only by Republican members. Democrats are barred. It's a disgrace the way they are doing business."

Alderman Folkes, a Republican, leaped to his feet and tried to say something, but was interrupted by Dowling, who cried:

"Don't pay any attention to this man's ravings. Let us get busy."

Finally the session was resumed with each member flaring angrily at his neighbor.

BROTHER CHARLES SEES TAFT VICTORY

MEREDITH, N. H., Sept. 24.—Before leaving today for Lake Sunapee, after he and his family had been detained over night by the breaking of a spring in their automobile, Charles P. Taft, the Cincinnati publisher, brother of President Taft, said:

"I am constantly in touch with my brother. Everything is most favorable. The pendulum has swung back past the middle mark and is moving our way."

The party will be at Lake Sunapee a few days, going from there to Bidderford Pool, where they have been spending their vacation.

IRIAS IN NICARAGUA AIDS REBEL ARMY

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—The State Department today received a dispatch that General Juan Irias of Costalica, who headed the protest to this country against the landing of marines in Nicaragua, has crossed into Nicaragua to assist the rebel forces under General Mena. Geral Mena is seriously ill and no longer able to actively command his forces. Theoris Nican government is held responsible for negligence in permitting Irias, known to be a professional revolutionist, to cross its borders into Nicaragua.

WILL HUSSEL TELLS HIS PLAN TO WIN $10,000

My name is Will Hussel.
I am twenty-nine years old.
I live in New England.
I am a candidate——
No; not in the primaries today—may the best man win! My candidacy is for the ten thousand dollars in cash offered by the Sunday AMERICAN to the New Englander who receives the most votes in a twenty-weeks' contest.

I enrolled in the contest yesterday. By sending in the Enrollment Ballot printed with the big contest advertisement I start with 800 votes to my credit. If I had gone in last week, I would have had 1,000 votes to start with. I understand that the Enrollment Ballot will be worth less next week than this, and still less the week after. Glad I waited so longer!

There are hundreds and hundreds and hundreds of men and women in this wonderful contest. Why should one of them address himself to the readers of the AMERICAN?

To Tell His Campaign.

Well, I want to be helpful. I am going to tell you something about my plan of campaign. The more entrants in this contest the better for all of us. If all New England went in, the winning vote would necessarily be smaller than for instance, if the contestants numbered only twenty or thirty.

I have been a water carrier in politics in my town for a number of years. I intend to use the methods of politics in my campaign.

Don't misunderstand me. I am not going to promise anything. I am just going to collect on a few promises. Everybody I have been "with," in the past, is going to be with me now. All hands will have to "get out on the line."

As a matter of fact, I have made a good start. Jim Sprowter, our popular representative in the Legislature, was the one who put the bee in my bonnet.

"I'll be chairman of the Will Hussell Campaign Committee for the Sunday AMERICAN'S $10,000," Jim said. "I'll call a meeting of the fellows for Tuesday night. We ought to get the Congressman Jolliman Club with us, and my own club, and the athletic crowd.

"We'll map the town out into districts, put a hustler in charge of each of the ten districts and give him ten hustlers to canvass it with him. Every Sunday afternoon we'll call for reports and recommendations.

Gets Some Printing.

"Furthermore," Jim said, "I think I'll get some printing done, in exact imitation of a political campaign. We'll wake the town up!"

Jim said a lot more to me. He reminded me of some things I had forgotten. He told me how much my friends in town think of me. Only last week, he said, in speaking of the success of our Old Home Week this year, Harris Addington, our leading citizen, had remarked that the town owed more to Will Hussel than to any other worker for success.

Jim said there was the same feeling in town about the success of the Fourth of July regatta on Pleasant Pond—I did lay myself out that time—and as for the women folks at the church, every one of them thinks I'm better at getting up a drama than old man Belasco himself.

Well, some of the other fellows talked about the same, and I'm going to try it out.

As concerned, the $1,000 district prize for our district would please me, all right.

"Cut it out," Jim said, "aim at the ten thousand dollars. Somebody's going to win it. Be that somebody. If you aim at one of those five one-thousand-dollars prizes you may hit a chest of silver. Do after Number One and everybody'll be with you. Don't, in this year of New England's great baseball glory, don't start your season aiming at a place in the second division."

So I'm in the race.

I'll tell you more about it as I go along.

The manager of the contest came over today very much pleased but somewhat worried.

"How are they coming?" we asked him. He beamed.

"Enrollments and subscriptions in every mail, BUT——"

"Yes?"

He frowned.

"Some of the contestants fill out the guarantee blank, but FAIL TO SEND IN THE SMALL GUARANTEE."

"How can we help? What shall we say to them?"

"Ask the few who have made this mistake please to read the directions again and read them carefully. The guarantee MUST accompany every subscription as an indication of the good faith of the subscriber. The way to send it in is BY MONEY ORDER."

We do as the Contest Manager suggests, and we also print conspicuously a SPECIAL OFFER to all contestants.

This SPECIAL OFFER is the biggest thing in the Sunday AMERICAN'S $40,000 voting contest up to this time.

Don't delay another minute about enrolling!

SPECIAL OFFER OF 5000 VOTES BY THE SUNDAY AMERICAN

This little notice is for those who have enrolled, or who are about to enroll, in the Sunday AMERICAN voting contest, for $10,000 in cash and 1,500 other prizes, the whole amounting to $40,000.

A good start is half the battle.

Your friends will probably be encouraged or discouraged by your showing when the standing of the contestants is printed for the first time.

This standing will be published, if possible, within a few weeks.

Now, then:

To every contestant SENDING IN TEN SUBSCRIPTIONS, properly filled out and signed and accompanied by the necessary guarantee, BEFORE 10 P. M. ON SATURDAY, OCTOBER 5TH, will be allowed a SPECIAL CREDIT OF 5,000 VOTES.

And observe:

This special credit will be IN ADDITION TO THE REGULAR VOTE CREDIT you are entitled to on each subscription.

This special offer is good, you will observe, for ONLY TWO WEEKS.

Take advantage of it at once! Start now to get your ten subscriptions, which may be for any of the periods, six months, twelve months or thirty-six months.

Quick action on this great offer may win ten thousand dollars for you.

POLITICAL NEWS

Massachusetts holds the centre of the stage politically today. Apart from the interest over the Foss-Pelletier and Benton-Walker contests for the Governorship, the country over has its eyes on Massachusetts today. The outcome of the primaries, while not so significant as the Vermont and Maine results, is looked to with interest.

Colonel Benton, if he wins over "Joe" Walker, will halt it as a victory of the shirt sleeve workers of the Republican party. "And I am going to win, too," says the colonel. A victory for ex-Speaker Walker will mean that the machine has been jolted also, and that the reactionaries of the G. O. P. are content for one year, at least, to have little to say in a preliminary contest. The old-time Republican machine for the first time in two generations will have little to say today. And they are perfectly content with their lot.

Odds of 5 to 3 on Foss found few takers last night. The bets were covered with political "fans," but little money changed hands. Sheriff Quinn ruled as a favorite. Betting was confined principally to local contests for Congress, Senate and House.

It was the liveliest night for street corner and hall rallies that Boston has seen since the memorable contest of Fitzgerald against Storrow, three years ago. Some of the shooters for both Foss and Pelletier were up in time to be 6-o'clock-in-the-morning voters, because they were up all night. It was a great night.

Bright and early tomorrow the contest for the next Mayor of Boston begins. Today's vote of Boston Democrats will eliminate some candidates for Mayor and pool others into the limelight. Today is big with fate for some Democrats who want to succeed Mayor Fitzgerald at City Hall.

Representative Tewksbury of Winthrop provides the humor for the State campaign. The Winthrop legislator joined the Bull Moosers, and was asked to contribute a few shekels as a Republican to the Republican State Committee. "I'm be charged nowadays with being a Republican brings one into disgrace and ill-repute," says Tewksbury. So he's thinking of bringing a libel suit against the G. O. P. officials who sent him the letter.

"No flies on Sheriff Quinn," interjected a voter as he saw "Honest John" mount a bench on Lafayette Mall of Boston Common and address a crowd. "Gentlemen," said Quinn, "the Red Sox will have the pennant and your humble servant will be nominated. And so will Governor Foss."

STOMACH MISERY JUST VANISHES

Time It! No Indigestion, Gas or Sourness Five Minutes After Taking "Pape's Diapepsin."

If what you just ate is souring on your stomach or lies like a lump of lead, refusing to digest, or you belch gas and eructate sour, undigested food, or have a feeling of dizziness, heartburn, fullness, nausea, bad taste in mouth and stomach headache—this is indigestion.

A full case of Pape's Diapepsin costs only fifty cents and will thoroughly cure your out-of-order stomach, and leave sufficient about the house in case some one else in the family may suffer from stomach trouble or indigestion.

Ask your pharmacist to show you the formula plainly printed on these fifty-cent cases, then you will understand why dyspeptic troubles of all kinds must go, and why they usually relieve sour, out-of-order stomachs or indigestion in five minutes. Diapepsin is harmless and tastes like candy, though each dose contains power sufficient to digest and prepare for assimilation into the blood all the food you eat; besides, it makes you go to the table with a healthy appetite; but, what will please you most, is that you will feel that your stomach and intestines are clean and fresh, and you will not need to resort to laxatives or liver pills for biliousness or constipation.

This city will have many Diapepsin cranks, as some people will call them, but you will be cranky about this splendid stomach preparation, too. If you ever try a little for indigestion or gastritis or any other stomach misery.

Get some now, this minute, and forever rid yourself of stomach trouble and indigestion.

RED SOX RILEY'S COLUMN PILGRIMS

A HUSKY mounted policeman, Boyle by name, who pushed his horse through the crowd ahead of the Red Sox procession yesterday, said that the throng that welcomed the 1912 champions back to Boston was the greatest street crowd he had ever seen under similar circumstances. Since Boyle has been a master of crowds these many years ba ck, and he and his horse are experts long since in the business, Boyle's opinion is worth while. Asked how many persons saw that demonstration, Boyle scratched his head, and remarked: "Oh, about 300,000!"

YOU don't know—I don't know—nobody knows—how many saw the Red Sox come home with the pennant. There were no turn-stiles. You couldn't "count the house." It was what is known as "a moving crowd." You could not count them by counting the spaces that they filled. So we'll have to leave it to Boyle. He's a very efficient police officer and knows his business. By way of parting, let's agree that Boyle and his fellow officers handled that unexpectedly large crowd, which swept onto their shoulders like a whirlwind, in marvelous fashion, and that it was the kind of riotously good-natured crowds that didn't need much handling.

* * *

WHETHER Boyle's estimate is correct or not, it was, so far as anybody can recollect, the largest baseball crowd that has ever gathered in America. The Red Sox came home with their pennant and were welcomed like an army returned from war. Traffic was suspended in the principal streets. The Common was jammed so that the speakers could only be heard by aid of their megaphones. And everybody yelled!

* * *

NEARLY all of those who packed the downtown streets, crowded away up to the wavering lane through which plunged the automobiles, and who filled all the windows of the business buildings did not know the players in their street clothes—not even those who know them well on the diamond. In that respect the crowd was disappointed. The people of Boston plainly want to meet the Red Sox at short range and know them. They'll have to be made better acquainted, some way. Lack of acquaintance by the public is natural. The baseball writers have a hard time keeping track of the newcomers in the big leagues. They don't look the part in street clothes.

TO help the people of Boston to become acquainted with their heroes, signs were attached to the automobiles, indicating who was intended to occupy each seat. The Red Sox, like all other persons in similar circumstances, did not like the idea of being labeled, until, like a flash they realized that that was the only way of being introduced. And, when an American is lost in a crowd, formalities disappear and you have to introduce yourself in the best way you can. Obviously, the people could not introduce themselves to the Red Sox. So the committee tried to introduce the Red Sox to the people.

* * *

BUT when the Red Sox train rushed into the South Station an hour late, the crowd swarmed through the trainshed, jammed the platforms so that the players were bottled up in their cars, and the Sox all had to emerge through the baggage car door and jump into any old motor car they could find. Therefore, Larry Gardner passed as Charley Hall, Charley Hall as Steve Yerkes, Steve Yerkes as "Heinie" Wagner, the baseball writers as Bill Carrigan, Olaf Henriksen, Neal Ball, and was not picked up on the streets and occupied the seat of "Alligator Joe" Quirk, who keeps the boys in trim, and everybody was mixed up.

OF all the bunch, though, the crowd did not miss Jake Stahl, Tris Speaker and Joe Wood. They've been pictured so much that almost everybody knew them. Bill Carrigan and "Heinie" Wagner were called for by the crowd, but Bill and "Heinie" were in New York, looking over the Giants. Mayor Fitzgerald explained their absence when the parade reached the Common, and everybody yelled approval.

THE crowd jammed about the bandstand on the Common—it was estimated at 20,000—was introduced to each of the players, in turn, so that they had a chance to see what the Red Sox look like when they're attired in street clothes. Jake Stahl, as happy as a boy, made a bit when he was introduced. Jake looked like he would fit right into a stage picture, if he could be coaxed behind the footlights after he wins the world's championship. Jake didn't have stage fright. Tris Speaker was perfectly at home; "Spoke" is "Spoke" in a crowd or out of it. The pitchers were mostly shy—Wood, Bedient and Collins—and the crowd had to demand their presence, threatening to tear down the bandstand if they did not appear, or you would never have seen them. "Buck" O'Brien was at home, because "Buck" did a Winter series on the stage between seasons. He was Charley Hall, because the "C. Q. D." man—the Sox "life-saver"—has pulled many a ball game out of the fire by his sea Dan coaching, saying nothing of what he does in the box when he's called to the rescue. The rest of the team were not eager to get into the spotlight.

* * *

EVERY man received a nearly equal welcome to that which every other man received, so that there was no doubt that all Boston recognized all the Red Sox as what Jimmy McAleer and Jake Stahl call them—"the greatest team that ever played baseball." "And," say McAleer and Stahl, "that goes for everybody."

HARVARD ELEVEN IN FIRST LINEUP

This afternoon will see the first scrimmaging for the football candidates on Soldiers' Field. Heretofore the practice has consisted entirely of elementary work and formations, but today the men will get down to real football.

When the men line up the backfield of the first team will probably consist of Captain Wendell, Charlie Brickley and Brndlee, with Harry Gardner or H. Hardwick at quarter. The second backfield will very likely contain Graustein, T. Hardwick and Bettle, with Mal Logan to run the team.

The first string line will probably be composed of Felton and O'Brien, ends; Storer and Hitcacock, tackles; McGuire and Withington, guards, and Farmenter, center; and the second of Hollister and Linzard or Mulholland, ends; Lawson and Beebe, tackles; Pennock and Noble, guards, and Makepeace, centre.

The actual makeup of the team thnt will start in the big games is of course as uncertain as it was a week ago. During the early season all the men mentioned, with a number of others, will undoubtedly be tried out in the preliminary games. Captain Wendell, Charlie Brickley, Storer and Hitchcock are about the only men who now seem safe bets for holders of regular positions. The other places look to be open to the men who show up to best advantage in the next few weeks.

Harvard Distance Runners Out Today

The Harvard cross-country candidates will report this afternoon at Soldiers Field. Mervay F. Lawless, the distance runner of the Crimson track team for the past year, is the captain of the Harvard team this Fall, and has the nucleus of a championship team back from last year.

The Harvard team has dual runs with Technology and Cornell prior to the big run, which is to be held at Ithaca this Fall. Coach Shrubb will meet the Harvard squad for the first time next Monday, and the hard work will be begun then.

Besides Lawless, there will be back in college from last year's team and the freshman team Warren, Blackman, Boyd, Carter, Capper, Stone, Koch, Copeland, McClure, Morris and a number of lesser lights.

BRAMAN DOW HURLS DEFI AT WAKEFIELD

The Braman Dow A. A. of Boston challenges the Wakefield town team for a game next Saturday under the following conditions: That the teams shall be composed of the same men that started in last Saturday's game, that the umpire be one chosen from the N. E. League staff or one otherwise neutral, and that each team abides by his decisions throughout the whole nine innings. Furthermore, the Braman Dow A. A. will understand that a refusal of this challenge means that the Wakefields are afraid of the batting ability of the Wakefield High School star Fred McKie, and were convinced last Saturday that they cannot fairly and squarely defeat him in a square and clean game of baseball. Manager H. A. Hallett, Braman & Dow Co., city.

Red Sox Battle with Yankees Two Games on Card for Today

The Red Sox got down to work once more today, after the tremendous welcome the Boston fans gave them. With the cheers of thousands upon thousands of fans still ringing in their ears, they were only waiting for the gong to sound at 1:30 this afternoon, to go after both games of the double header with the New York Highlanders.

Heroes of a home-coming which equalled in enthusiasm that given Admiral Dewey when he rode through Boston's streets after his victory at Manila Bay, the Red-hosed warriors today had nothing but praise for the remarkable enthusiasm of Boston's fans. The Sox went out to Fenway Park mightily encouraged for their World's Series clashes and the remaining games of the regular string by the great welcome given them.

The fans who thronged about the South Station, along the route of the parade and at the Common were estimated by various persons who have seen similar crowds to have numbered anywhere from 200,000 to 275,000.

Larry Gardner will probably start for his home in Enosburg Falls, Vt., today. His finger is in splints. Gardner said the little finger had been turned at the first joint; that the flesh and skin were broken so that the end of the second section of the bone protruded. It looked rather bad at the time of the injury, but it has not been as painful as he thought it was going to be.

The rest of the boys said they were feeling fine today.

The demonstration on the Common, when Jake Stahl, Tris Speaker, Joe Wood, Larry Gardner, "Duffy" Lewis, "Buck" O'Brien, Ray Collins, Engle, Bedient, Cady, Charley Hall, Larry Pape, Yerkes, Thomas, Nunamaker, Henriksen, and all along down the line to Jerry McCarthy, the mascot, were presented in turn by Mayor Fitzgerald, was the most wildly enthusiastic ever seen there. It was a demonstration such as could only have been given by a crowd of baseball fans.

Last night the Red Sox occupied boxes at the Plymouth Theatre as the guests of Manager Fred E. Wright, Jr., a member of the Welcome Home Committee and a royal fan, and William Hodge, the star in "The Man From Home." At the close of the third act Mr. Hodge, in a brief speech, said that the applause of the night belonged in front of the footlights, referring to the presence of the ball players. His speech brought rounds of applause.

This evening the members of the team will attend the performance of "The Woman Haters' Club," at the Tremont Theatre, where the star, Miss Sallie Fisher, will present the players with a loving cup.

Greeted With Shouts.

The vast throng inside the South Station shouted and yelled as the ball players appeared in sight, and from that moment until the parade ended on Boston Common, there was one round of ovations. Some of the fans were not content with greeting the players at the depot and surrounded their automobiles and accompanied them over the line of march, cheering again and again each individual player.

The grand homecoming reception, suggested and arranged by the AMERICAN for the fans, was a never-to-be-forgotten event. It will go down in the history of Boston and baseball as one of the crowning events of Boston's big year and the climax to one of the greatest fights ever made by a major league team for a pennant.

On the Common, black with people, the scene was animated. Calculators of crowds on that historic spot were positive there were 150,000 persons present. The cheering and handclapping was deafening.

W. T. A. Fitzgerald, Suffolk County Registrar, led off with an eloquent word for the Red Sox crew, voicing the sentiment of every fan in Boston and New England. He was chairman of the Red Sox Welcome Home Committee.

Mayor Fitzgerald was introduced as chairman of the gathering, and made a stirring address, reflecting the views of the fans when he said the Red Sox typified the greatest baseball team and Boston the greatest baseball city in the world.

Songs were sung with a mighty good will, while the Red Sox sat and listened, smiling happily at the handsome reception accorded them. Again and again the fans demanded them to stand and bow their tunes as "Our Director," in honor of Manager Stahl, and "Pals Harvard," in honor of Street Commissioner "Jimmy" Gallivan, a fan of the deepest dye, who graduated from the institution across the Charles.

Everybody Hails Red Sox

The size of the crowds exceeded all expectations. Even the office boy who toted his boss his grandmother was sick, forgot the latter to size up Manager Stahl's crew on their victorious entry to Boston town. Politicians forgot their battles for offices and stood shoulder to shoulder in getting themselves hoarse cheering the Red Sox. It was a gala day for all concerned.

There wasn't the least doubt in anybody's mind that the splendid reception and tributes to the players and Manager Stahl ought to prove the best thing possible to breathe added confidence into the hearts and World Series hopes of the gallant band of Red Sox.

In their speeches Mayor Fitzgerald, Registrar Fitzgerald, James H. Vahey and Sheriff John Quinn "got 'em all going" repeatedly. Their words of praise, their laurels for the club management and their special bouquets to the staunch ball players kept the crowd warmed up to the cheering point.

Picato Says He Will Win Battle
Young Donahue Less Confident

By JACK CONWAY.

FRANK PICATO, a bronzed young mitt wielder, who hails from sunny California, is telling his newly made Boston friends some interesting stories of what he is going to do to Mr. Philip Powers at the Pilgrim A. A. tomorrow evening. Phil is a sidewalks, energetic citizen and is known to the peaceful residents of Roxbury as Young Donahue, "our own light weight pride."

This Picato person acknowledges that Donahue may have been a good boxer and that he probably is still able to give a fine account of himself within a twenty-four feet ring, but he asserts that the Highland favorite hasn't met a man as fast and shifty and who can hit as hard as he can for many a long month.

It will be remembered that Picato showed his prowess in this town two weeks ago. He was pitted against Frank Loughrey, and after ten rounds of whirlwind fighting the referee ran the index finger of his right hand through his ruffled hair and then raised both of his arms to a level with his shoulders, all of which went to signify that the contest was even.

PICATO won ——— admirers by his game battle against Loughrey. He was unable to do a great deal of training in preparation for the go, as he had been ill. He nevertheless went in and gave a fine exhibition.

Picato is now in perfect health and he has been training like a Trojan for the past few days. That is why he believes that there are huge rocks and mammoth boulders in the path of the good ship Donahue.

The western boxer says that he will defeat Donahue in decisive fashion and then start on the trail of Matty Baldwin. He has also got an idea that he is a better man than the Charlestown Bearcat.

DONAHUE, in the meantime, is taking his regulation number of hours of sleep, and from all outward appearances, is doing a whole lot of worrying. In fact, he claims that he was never introduced to Mr. Worry & Co.

Phil is a clever youth. He probably forgot more about the art of boxing than old "Doc" Quennsberry ever knew. Donahue, however, has not done much boxing lately. They say he has gone back. Phil thinks differently.

The bout between Dave Dwyer and Young Natchie is also sure to be crowded with action when Gilbert Gardner and Tommy Carey should make the fur fly.

FREDDY DUFFY is confident that he will prove too fast for Kid Alberts, whom he meets at Lewiston, Me., this week. Duffy is one of the cleverest kids pound boys in New England and appears to have a big future.

Boston fans are anxious to see Freddy box in one of the all star shows at the Arena. He has a host of admirers who believe that inside of another year he will be battling with the big fellows. Duffy was offered a chance to meet Gallant tomorrow night but was unable to accept it on account of his engagement at Lewiston.

DANNY MORGAN is now anxious to arrange a meeting between his protege, Jack Britton, and Matty Baldwin of Charlestown. In a letter received by the writer today Morgan writes:

"Jack Britton has won the only two fights he will be matched in for years. He knocked out Eddie Murphy, while he won on a foul from Young Saylor.

"Matty Baldwin witnessed both contests and he declared that he would be able to lower the colors of my coming champion. He believes that his ability to keep in close and his great strength would enable him to lower Britton's colors. I fail to agree with him and am willing to match Britton against Baldwin at any time.

IN his letter, Morgan failed to say anything about making good his promise to let "Kingdom" Brown clash with the "Charlestown Tarzan," and I believe that he is trying to save Brown for a match with Baldwin in behalf of Britton.

Jack is a wonderful boxer and undoubtedly would be able to outpoint Matty. He is a shifty bout though he probably would be unable to pull off the trick in a twenty-round contest. It would be interesting to hear from Morgan in regard to a Baldwin-Brown go.

"JIG" STONE, a Boston newspaper mailer and ex-lightweight boxer of Charlestown, will attempt to beat "Jockey" Carnes around in a walk from coast to coast. He will begin his walk from Boston on November 1. "Jig" will be remembered as the boy who fought Eddie Carr and Honey Mellody many memorable battles in the squared circle.

How McGraw Quit; Old-Time Baseball News of Interest

According to John J. McGraw, the talkative manager of the New York Giants, his team will wipe up the diamond with the Red Sox in the coming World Series.

McGraw says that his men are just aching to get a crack at Jake Stahl's gallant crew while he himself is anxiously waiting for the opening of the season. Perhaps this is so, but we have our doubts.

McGraw fears the Red Sox way down in his heart. He probably realizes as well as anybody else that his team will have to play wonderful ball or get a bad beating.

The Sox won the World's Championship in 1903 by beating Pittsburgh. They captured the championship of the American League again in 1904, and Jimmy Collins, who was then manager of the Red Sox, challenged McGraw's Giants, who had won the title in the National League, but the latter refused to play. It was a clear case of cold feet.

We wonder whether or not McGraw would call off this year's series if he could.

Record Entry List for Brockton Races

During the past week Horace A. Keith in charge of the athletic events held in connection with the Brockton Fair, has received more entries than have ever before been recorded for this series of events.

From all sections of New England entries have been pouring in for the Mara thon run that will be held from the B. A. A. clubhouse on Exeter street to the fair grounds at Brockton on October 4, and inasmuch as the prizes offered for this event are better and more valuable than ever before, it is expected that one of the best long-distance races held in the East will be witnessed.

Howard Drew, who won the national championship at Pittsburgh last Saturday, Tom Lilley, Andrew Sozaiezki, with a number of other star athletes, are already entered for the games. Horace A. Keith will receive the entries for the bout today.

THE BOSTON AMERICAN'S DAILY DOUBLE

The Birds of War

THEY ARE BEGINNING TO FLY ALONG THE BORDER BETWEEN FRANCE AND GERMANY

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

BACCARAT, France, Aug. 20.—This little village of Old Burgundy enjoyed a sensation this morning which was like a glimpse through the curtain of the future.

Sailing in the blue, a thousand feet overhead, suddenly appeared a bird of war. It was of the monoplane type, which so closely imitates the form of a flying dragon. It passed swiftly on, scaring the real birds that fled in all directions, and, followed by a thousand eyes, disappeared beyond the horizon in the direction of that frontier toward which so many anxious thoughts are continually turned.

There was nothing novel in the mere appearance of an aeroplane in this country. During the great races of aviators last year many of these strange birds sailed over the vineclad hills of Burgundy, and became, for a time, a daily spectacle. It was the knowledge that THIS BIRD was a military engine that today gave it no thrilling an interest. It will be the sudden appearance of a grim battleship in a peaceful harbor, when ordinary vessels attract no particular attention.

It was an integral part of that army which, for a week past, has been practicing its evolutions within striking distance of the German frontier. During this time troops of cavalry, long columns of infantry, rumbling trains of artillery, have been occupying the roads on all sides. Signal flags have been waving from commanding hills, and conspicuous ridges have been held by strong forces of troops, as if an enemy were actually in sight. On all sides have appeared speeding autos carrying officers in brilliant uniforms or motor patrolling the highways; dispatch bearers galloping hither and thither; and a spectator could not but feel as if he had been caught in the midst of the game of war played in earnest.

The outbuildings of every chateau, the farm houses and barns everywhere, have, night after night, furnished accommodations to large contingents of soldiers, stabling their horses, and building their fires to make soup; while their officers have been welcomed, wherever they would accept the invitation, to dine at the family tables of citizens.

The enthusiasm for the army seems universal, and when the aeroplanes appeared people cried, exultingly: "The next time they are not going to catch us unaware and unprepared."

It shows again, more clearly, what I have hitherto said, that the coming war will, on account of the introduction of these new means of transport, and these new ways of spying an enemy, be the most novel and picturesque exhibition of military science that the world has ever beheld. Everybody knows that on the other side of the line similar preparations and precautions are the order of the day.

A Great Strain

The strain on the public mind is far greater than anyone new living in the midst of it could imagine. The incidents of last year—the quarrel over the African possessions and pretensions of France and Germany, and the belief in France that they checkmated their opponents—have aroused a spirit of confidence which did not before exist. This has been greatly strengthened by the English and Russian alliances, but still there is no disguising the fact that the French, on their own account, and standing alone, are NO LONGER AFRAID. They do not think of aggression, but they have come to feel that they can successfully defend themselves even if outnumbered two to one. But back of it all there is an undying resentment over the misfortunes, losses and sufferings of 1870, which would, probably lead France to make an attack if what she now regards as her hereditary [illegible] unexpectedly, find herself [illegible]

[illegible] people cannot, in the nature of [illegible] the feelings which one [illegible] out here, on every side, [illegible] a neighboring people, without the existence of a constant danger of war. If Napoleon now had his hand on the wheel in France, she would be steered into war tomorrow, and the heart of the nation would be with him.

But there are some uncertainties which cause much misgiving, notwithstanding the general revival of confidence. Although it is now the fashion to pat England on the back, it is not forgotten that here, in France, originated the nickname of "perfidious Albion." A release of the strain now existing between England and Germany would cause consternation in France. People here do not dwell upon the ties of race that connect the Germanic nations. They would rather have them forgotten

Much Anxiety

So, too, there is much anxiety concerning the exact terms of the understanding with Russia. A conspicuous French military writer and officer is calling upon M. Poincare to reveal, if he knows, what Russia would do in case of war between France and Germany. The probability of such a war is talked of continuously, in the most open manner. One of the most curious phases of this critical situation comes before me as I write. It takes the form of bitter comment upon the "invasion" of Switzerland by Germans, who are settling there in increasing numbers and rapidly taking a hand in local industries. It is believed in France that as soon as the Germans in Switzerland become sufficiently numerous they will control the government, perhaps upset the republic, and, at any rate, make it a tool in the hands of the Hohenzollern empire. Thus a terrible menace would be presented to France on her weakest side.

Are these things outinteresting in America? Why should they be? We spend years of our lives in reading the history of the great nations of the past. Why should we not give far more attention to the history of existing nations, which is IN THE MAKING?

Great wars and revolutions always foretell themselves, but there are few who stop to read the signs of their coming. Over a hundred years ago Arthur Young, traveling leisurely in France, saw and recorded the first stir of the French revolution. But nobody took him seriously until events, coming like lightning strokes, suddenly changed his prophecy into rere-written history.

Seizing the Opportunity

WHILE out for a walk with her little niece, auntie had the misfortune to rip the lace on her skirt as she crossed a stile.

"Ethel," remarked auntie, "I can't mend the lace now, so would you mind stooping down and carefully tearing off the piece that is hanging loose?"

Ethel was quite willing and eager to please, and duly commenced her task. For several minutes there was a sound of tearing, really much more tearing than was necessary to remove a small length of broken lace.

"Haven't you finished yet?" asked auntie eventually.

"Yes," replied the little girl, rising wearily. "I was taking it all off. I wanted enough for my doll's skirt while I was about it, and the little bit you tore wasn't enough."

Not a Mouser, Anyway.

Mrs. Muggs—That horrid Mrs. Frills told Mrs. Nextdoor that I was a regular cat!

What do you think of that?

Mr. Muggs—I think she never saw you in the same room with a mouse.

The Ten Ages of Beauty

No. 10—The Modern Maid

This picture, the last of this series by Miss Nell Brinkley, is reproduced by permission from Good Housekeeping Magazine for September.

It accompanies an article by Octave Uzanne, entitled "The Story of Furs and Muffs."

In this picture Miss Brinkley shows the fashionably dressed girl of today, and, as pointed out by Miss Ayer in her accompanying article, she is easily the Queen of all the correctly dressed maids for nineteen centuries past. Comfort, ease and a marked absence of artificiality are depicted in the air of languid grace and charm lent by the girl in the picture.

While the girl of 1912 may show faults of dress, in comparison to her sisters of generations past she enjoys a comfort of style never dreamed of in former days.

THE AUTUMN GIRL OF 1912.

By Margaret Hubbard Ayer

HERE at last is the most perfect type of beauty—the Autumn girl of 1912.

It has taken nineteen Christian centuries, besides all the thousands of years that went before, to evolve this delicate and exquisite flower of the human race, and she shows her gratitude by remembering the glory that was Greece and the grandeur that was Rome" and borrows a fillet from the one to bind her modern marvelled tresses and a tunic from the other to wear over her well-corseted little figure.

The Queen

She is the queen of all the centuries, time and history are annihilated for her all things that man has wrung from the earth or made with his hands at length are laid at her dainty feet.

The sacred scarab buried for thousands of years in the folds of mummy cloth which wrapped the body of some Egyptian king hangs by a silken thread around the neck of the Autumn girl.

The lace on her frock is part of an altar cloth worked by pious hands several hundred years ago.

Her jewels rival those of any ancient queen and the silk and satin which she wears are more perfect than anything Cleopatra could have obtained, for chiffon and liberty velvets are modern inventions.

Only the richest and greatest of the earth could afford to wear cloth of gold in olden days. Sable and ermine were theirs by right of law and power. A "commoner" was prohibited for dressing like his peers and no woman was permitted to dress above her station.

That may have had its disadvantages, as fathers and husbands will tell you—but the girl of 1912 knows how to cheer up poor old father as he groans over the bills, and she is no true daughter of Eve if she can't fascinate her husband into signing checks at her command

Her Command

"Oh, I must have new furs, dear!" How softly she can coo as she names the sum, which is quite a bit more than he thought it was going to be. But it sizzles on his ear. And as he looks at this charming creature, at once his greatest blessing and his most expensive luxury, he realizes that the American man's progress up the ladder of financial success is measured by the way his wife dresses.

She is like an advancing display—the electric light sign that attracts all eyes to its ever-increasing wealth.

No wonder he lavishes money upon her, and no wonder she wears her frocks and furs and jewels as if they were hers by right. The electric sign revels in its own glory and never thinks that it does not create its own radiance.

But the man who works to earn all this splendor, the men and women who toil at starvation wages to make these wonderful frocks and coats, often ask if it was really worth while, and if she wouldn't have looked prettier in a plain little dress

The ghostly little rabbit by her side looks up in humble admiration. He has sacrificed his very skin for her adornment and beholds it now glorified as electric seal fie is one of many to contribute his life to make her beautiful.

How Could He?

MR. WILLIAM SIKES had found what, in his opinion, was a snug crib. It was a country mansion, and the mode of access was easy. He waited till midnight, and then approached the house. Grasping the ivy, he slowly and carefully climbed up the side of the house till he reached the level of the first floor window.

Holding on to the sill with both hands, he stopped to picture the wealth that was about to become his. His mind dwelt on the jewelry and plate that was so nearly within his grasp. Then his dream was abruptly broken by the opening of the window. A female head appeared.

"Hands up or I fire!"

Women was ever unreasonable.

Adaptable Man.

Artist (to gentleman whose portrait he has just painted)—Why are you gazing at your portrait so thoughtfully?

Gentleman—I am wondering what I'd better do to myself to make me look as much like the picture as possible.

Married Life the Third Year

No. 77—WARREN IS NOTIFIED THAT AFTER OCTOBER 1 THEIR RENT WILL BE RAISED

By MABEL HERBERT URNER

"READ that!" demanded Warren, as he took a letter from his pocket and threw it into Helen's lap.

July 15, 1912.

Mr. W. E. Curtis, Boston Mass.

My Dear Sir:—We beg to inform you that beginning October 2 the rents in your house are to be advanced. The new rate for apartment No. 504, which you are now occupying, will be $1,400.

As we are now having many applications for these apartments, will you kindly let us know at the earliest possible date if you wish to renew your lease.

We hope that you will remain with us, and will be glad to make any reasonable concessions that may be necessary. Very truly yours,

THE HARKSWORTH REALTY CO.

"Fourteen hundred!" Helen looked up with a gasp of dismay. "Surely they won't charge fourteen hundred for this apartment?"

"Sounds as though they're going to doesn't it?"

"And this is the middle of September. Why, Warren, what CAN we do?"

"Pay it—or get out, of course. Don't give me much time, though. You see that's dated July 15 — came while we were away, and got mixed in with some papers at the office. Didn't come across it till this morning."

"Then this may be already rented since they didn't hear from you, they're probably leased it to some one else."

"No, I called up the office today it's still open, but we'll have to decide this week."

"But could we get anything else now?

Warren shrugged his shoulders. "Won't hurt to try. How about those apartments in that new house we looked at with the Stevens' last Spring? The 'Palatoria,' wasn't it, or some such highfalutin' name?"

Too Expensive

"Oh, but it's too expensive. Didn't they say they didn't anything less than fifteen hundred?"

"Well, I'd a darn sight rather pay six teen hundred there than fourteen here. Put your bonnet on—we'll take a look at them now."

"But isn't it too late to see apartments?" objected Helen "Why, it's almost eight!"

"They'll be glad enough to show 'em. Come, get on your things. When you make up your mind to do a thing, that's the time to do it."

Warren often acted on some such sudden impulse, and Helen knew it would be useless to protest

Half an hour later they entered the marbled, over decorated hall of the Palatoria

The brass-buttoned elevator boy said the superintendent was out, that they had only one vacant apartment which he could let them see, but he did not know the rent. He took them up to the fifth floor front, switched on the lights and left them there while he hurried back to his elevator.

It was a seven-room apartment, with the library, den and dining room thrown together

"Oh, these three rooms are really wonderful!" exclaimed Helen. "Why, this library must be over twenty feet!"

"And see about twenty. I should say They're good-sized rooms all right—good-shaped rooms, too."

"And look at the floors—why, dear, they're all parquet. And the mantels and woodwork are not bad. Fumed oak—isn't it? Don't you like this dull finish? Let's see the bedrooms," eagerly.

But both the bedrooms were small, and the maid's room smaller still.

"Well, you can't have everything. They're not all the space in those front rooms and had to skimp on these."

"Oh, what a little closet!" disappointedly, as she opened a door displaying a shallow space. "Why DON'T they have more closet room? Just think, only three small closets in all this apartment!"

"Women are always howling for closets Don't collect as much truck

Cunning Cabinets

"Why, dear, we must have some place to put our clothes."

But Warren was now investigating the bathroom. "Good-sized tub—that's what I like. You have to sit humped up most of the time. That looks like a good shower, too."

"Oh, what cunning little medicine cabinets. And look, dear, another long mirror in this door—that makes three! And we haven't one that I can see the bottom of my skirt in!"

But Warren, who was examining the plumbing, seemed more interested in that than in the mirrored doors.

Then they went back through the dining room to the kitchen. Helen was most enthusiastic

"Oh, what a nice kitchen! Don't you like this way the range sets back? These china closets are lovely. White woodwork is always so good for a kitchen—it makes everything look so clean."

"Good-sized pantry, too," as Warren swung open the door

"Yes, I is a nice pantry; and what a lovely refrigerator

"What's that?" he demanded, opening a small metal door near the floor

"Oh, that must be a ventilated garbage box. Mrs. Stevens has one, and she says they're so nice. You see, it's ventilated outside and the lid comes down on the garbage can when you shut the door. And look, dear, here's a bread board. Isn't that a good idea?" as she raised up a board that was hinged from the wall. "But what's this for?"

"Search me. I'm not up on all the latest housekeeping knick knacks. But I should say they're a pretty good outfit here."

"Oh, the appointments of the kitchen and pantry are wonderful. The whole apartment is ideal—if they ONLY had more closet room!"

"Throw away some of that rubbish. You've got stuff crowded in those closets until you can hardly shut the doors. If you had a dozen closets you'd have 'em all full. Now, let's see these front rooms again."

Good Air

He threw up a window in the library and leaned far out "Yes, you get good light and air here from all sides Let's see—this faces south—that gives us south, north and east windows. Ought to get any breeze that's going."

"And Warren, have you noticed the chandeliers? This one is particularly good —and those side lights are good, too."

"Yes, those look like expensive fixtures. I should say this was a pretty good house, well built and well fitted. I'll call up the agent tomorrow. Guess we've seen about all we can tonight. You go on out, and I'll switch off these lights. That boy doesn't seem to be coming"

As they waited for the elevator, Helen scrutinized the hall and stairway "Everything seems so clean and well kept".

"Yes, but all these apartment house halls have an institutional look. Can't imagine anything less cozy or homelike This might be a hospital or a reformatory from the looks of this corridor"

"But I suppose they have to build them fireproof," ventured Helen. "Perhaps that's why they can't make them more attractive"

"Have you a plan of the building?" Warren asked the elevator boy, as they went down

"Yes, sir; but you'll have to get that from the superintendent."

"How about freight and service—everything go up on this elevator?"

"Oh, no sir; there's a service elevator back there."

"Laundry in the basement?"

"Yes, sir, and we have a large steam drying room."

"That's a good house," declared Warren when they reached the street. "I'll wager a dollar you'll vote, too. Did they have a mail chute? I forgot to notice."

"Oh, yes, dear, right by the elevator" Then, after a pause, "They're not putting them in so many houses now—we have to have a certain number of tenants. Well, I suppose if we are to get that apartment for whatever hundred we ought to take it. But I want a two years lease. No moving again next year."

"But, dear, do you think we could afford to bind ourselves for two years at fifteen hundred?"

"Wouldn't suggest it if I didn't"

"Then you wouldn't decide—I mean you wouldn't sign a lease tomorrow?"

Warren Is Suited

"Why not?"

"Why—why, I thought we might look around a little first"

"If that apartment suits us, what's the sense in looking around? That's like a woman. Even if she finds just the thing she wants, she trots around to see all the other stuff so she doesn't want."

"But, my dear," protested Helen, "it was only that I thought we might find something for a little less."

"Well, I don't want anything any less. That apartment suits me, and if I can get a two years' lease at fifteen hundred, I'll sign tomorrow. And for heaven's sake, don't you begin worrying about the rent. If I've got to pay it—I can do the worrying, too."

Swift & Company's sales of Fresh Beef in Boston for the week ending Saturday, September 21st, averaged 11 6/8 cents per pound.

Stop scratching!

ARE you tormented by some itching, unsightly skin humor that keeps you digging and scratching, won't let you sleep, and makes your life miserable? You can stop that itching instantly with Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap, and get rid of even the stubbornest eruption quickly and at little cost.

Resinol heals itching skin

Baltimore, Md., June 7, 1912.—"My eczema began with an itching and burning, and little red blotches on my face, which itched so it seemed sometimes as though I would die the skin off. I could not sleep at night. Then it went into my hands. They were red and raw, so painful that I could not wash my dishes. I tried different salves for about three months, but they did me no good, for the eczema spread up the arm to the elbow, and got so bad on the face that I was ashamed to go on the street. I got a bar of Resinol Ointment, and Resinol Soap, and slept well the first night after using them. Before I had finished the second jar, I was entirely cured." (Signed) Mrs. Annie Myers, 704 E. PART I.—(Continued).

"THIS confidence has for me a very unhappy side," he remarked, with a shade of sadness. "It shows me Oswald's thought. He who loved her best, accepts the cruel verdict of an unreasoning public."

Doris's large eyes burned with a weird light upon her face.

"He has not had my dream," she murmured, with all the quiet of an unmoved conviction.

Yet as the days went by, even her manner changed toward the busy inventor. It was hardly possible for it not to. The high stand he took; the regard accorded him on every side; his talent; his conversation, which was an education in itself, and, above all, his absorption in a work daily advancing toward completion, required him so insensibly and yet so decidedly, from the hideous past of tragedy with which his name, if not his honor, was associated, that, unconsciously to herself, she gradually lost her air of repulsion and lent him a more or less attentive ear, when he chose to join their small company of an evening. The result was that he turned so bright a side upon her that toleration merged from day to day into admiration and memory lost itself in anticipation of the event which was to prove him a man of men, if not one of the world's greatest mechanical geniuses.

Meantime, Oswald was steadily improving in health, if not in spirits. He had taken his first walk without any unfavorable results, and Orlando decided from this that the time had come for an explanation of his device and his requirements in regard to it. Seated together in Oswald's room, he broached the subject thus:

"Oswald, what is your idea about what I'm making you there?"

"That it will be a success.

"I know; but its character, its use! What do you think it is?

"I've an idea; but my idea doesn't fit the conditions."

"How's that?"

"The shed is too closely hemmed in. You haven't room—"

"For what?"

"To start an aeroplane."

"Yes, it is certainly a device for flying."

"I supposed so; but—"

"It is an air-car with a new and valuable idea—the idea for which the whole world has been seeking ever since the first aeroplane found its way up from the earth. My car needs no room to start in save that which it occupies. If it did, it would be but the modification of a hundred others."

"Orlando!"

As Oswald thus gave expression to his surprise, their two faces were a study: the fire of genius in the one; the light of sympathetic understanding in the other.

"If this car, now within three days of its completion," Orlando proceeded, "does not rise from the oval of my hangar like a bird from its nest, and after wide and circling flight descend again into the next same spot without swerving from its direct course, then I have failed in my endeavor and must take a back seat with the rest. But it will not fail. I'm certain of success, Oswald. All I want just now is a sympathetic helper—you, for instance; some one who will aid me with the final fittings and hold himself in all eternity if the impossible occurs and the thing proves a failure."

"Have you such pride as that?"

"Precisely."

"So much that you cannot face failure?"

"Not when attended to my name. You can see how I feel about that. It is the secrecy I have worked under. No other person living knows what I have just communicated to you. Every part shipped here came from different manufacturing firms; sometimes a part of a part was all I allowed to be made in any one place. My fame, like my ship, must rise with me bound into the air, or it must never rise at all. I was not made for petty accomplishment, or the slow plodding of commonplace minds. I must startle, or remain obscure. That is why I chose this place for my venture, and you for my helper and associate."

The Refusal

"You want me to ascend with you?"

"Exactly."

"At the end of three days."

"Yes."

"Orlando, I cannot."

"You cannot? Not strong enough yet? I'll wait then—three days more."

"The time's too short. A month is scarcely sufficient. It would be folly, such as you never show, to trust a nerve so undermined as mine till time has restored its power. For an enterprise like this you need a man of ready strength and resources; not one whose condition you ought to be obliged to consider at a very critical moment."

Orlando, balked thus at the outset, showed his displeasure.

"You do not do justice to your will. It is strong enough to carry you through anything."

"It was."

"You can force it to act for you."

"I fear not, Orlando."

"I counted on you and you thwart me at the most critical moment of my life."

Oswald smiled; his whole candid and generous nature bursting into view, at one quick flash.

"Perhaps," he assented; "but you will thank me when you realize my weakness. Another man must be found—quick, deft, secret, yet honorably alive to the importance of the occasion and your rights as a great original thinker and mechanician."

"Do you know such a man?"

"I don't; but there must be many such among our workmen."

"There isn't one; and I haven't time to send to Brooklyn, I reckoned on you."

"Can you wait a month?"

"No."

"A fortnight, then?"

"No, not ten days."

Oswald looked surprised. He would like to have asked why such precipitation was necessary, but the tone in which this ultimatum was given was of that decisive character which admits of no argument. He, therefore, merely looked his query. But Orlando was not one to answer looks; besides, he had no reply for the same important question urged by his own good sense. He knew that he must make the attempt upon which his future rested soon, and without risk of the sapping influence of lengthened suspense and weeks of waiting. He could hold on to those two devious leagues to attack against him, for a definite seven days, but not for an indeterminate time. If he were to be saved from folly—from himself—events must rush.

He, therefore, repeated his no with increased vehemence, adding, as he marked the reproach in his brother's eye: "I cannot wait. The test must be made on Saturday evening next, whatever the conditions, whatever the weather. An air-car to be serviceable must be ready to meet lightning and tempest, and what is worse, perhaps, an insufficient crew." Then rising, he exclaimed with a determination which rendered him majestic: "If help is not forthcoming, I'll do it all myself. Nothing shall hold me back; nothing shall stop me; and when you see me and my car rise above the treetops you'll feel that I have done what I could to make you forget——"

The Day Fixed

He did not need to continue. Oswald understood, and flashed a grateful look his way before saying:

"You will make the attempt at night?"

"Certainly."

"And on Saturday?"

"I've said it."

"I will run over in my mind the qualifications of such men as I know, and acquaint you with the result tomorrow."

"There are adjustments to be made. A man of accuracy is necessary."

"I will remember."

"And he must be flexible. I can do nothing with a man with whom I'm not perfectly in accord."

"I understand that."

"Good night, then." A moment of hesitancy—then, "I wish not only yourself, but Miss Scott, to be present at this test. Prepare her for the spectacle; but not yet, not till within an hour or two of the occasion."

And with a proud smile in which dashed a significance which startled Oswald, he gave a hurried nod and turned away.

When in an hour afterward Doris looked in through the open door, she found Oswald sitting with face buried in his hands, thinking so deeply that he did not hear. He had sat like this, immovable and absorbed, ever since his brother had left him.

Silence—And a Knock

OSWALD did not succeed in finding a man to please Orlando. He suggested one person after another to the exacting inventor, but none were satisfactory to him and each in turn was turned down. It is not every one we want to have share a world-wide triumph or an ignominious defeat. And the days were passing.

He had said in a moment of elation: "I will do it alone;" but he knew even then that he could not. Two hands were necessary to start the car; afterward he might manage it alone. Descent was even possible, but to give the contrivance its first lift required a second mechanician. Where was he to find one to please him? And what was he to do if he did not? Conquer his prejudices against such men as he had seen, or delay the attempt, as Oswald had suggested, till he could get one of his old cronies on from New York? He could be neither. The obstinacy of his nature was such as to offer an invincible barrier against either suggestion. One alternative remained. He had heard of women aviators. If Doris could be induced to accompany him into the air, instead of clinging soddenlike to the weight of Oswald's woe, then would the world behold a triumph which would dwarf the coming of the dissolving Zeppelins and rob the eagle of his kingly pride. But Doris barely entered his mind with the subject, which was not one to be considered for a moment. Yet what other course remained? He was brooding deeply on the subject, in his hangar one evening—it was Thursday and Saturday was but two days off—when there came a light knock at the door.

To Be Continued Tomorrow.

Good Counsel to Widows — A WISE HUSBAND'S LEGACY

By DOROTHY DIX

A FEW weeks ago a fine and noble man, who was a devoted husband, passed into the Great Beyond. After his death, when his strong box in the bank was opened, the topmost thing in it was found to be a letter addressed to his wife.

It was a beautiful and tender love letter, telling her of his great affection for her, and of how happy she had made his life. Then, as if he stretched a protecting arm about her even from the grave, he counseled her about her future life and the management of her affairs, and gave her the following sagacious pieces of advice:

Don't go to live with any of your married children.

Don't go to live with any of your relatives.

Make a little home for yourself, where you can live your own independent life.

Have a place of your own where you rule supreme, even if it is nothing but a room in a hotel. From it you can visit your friends and your relatives all you like, but don't go to live under anybody's roof.

Sage Counsel

Don't trust anybody to manage your business affairs for you. Do that yourself.

Keep all of your business to your own hands and at your fingers' ends.

If you find you can't manage your business, put it in the control of a trust company, not an individual.

Don't speculate. Buy nothing but gilt edge bonds.

Don't be tempted to buy untried securities because they promise big interest. You can get only a low rate of interest on absolutely safe investments.

Never lend money to a relative or a friend.

Take care of your money.

Remember that her pocketbook is an old woman's best friend.

The Safe Course

Never forget that people do not want a poor old woman about them, and that the only way you can be sure of always being a welcome guest, and made much of when you are old and feeble, is to have enough money to make it worth while for people to court you.

Don't forget that all through life we have to pay as we go, and when we are old the price is doubled on us.

Don't give away your money, even to your children, while you are alive. Expectations of favors to come is a stronger staff to lean on than gratitude for benefits received.

These words of advice may well be taken to heart by every widow who reads them, for they are a guide and a sign post, point your money, and if they are the greedy sort that can't wait till you die to get it, they will have no further use for you when they have fleeced you. We have all seen Mother treated worse than a servant in her own house that she had been good enough to deed over to her son.

Easily Deceived

It is an added tragedy of widowhood that it so often leaves a woman as bewildered and helpless as a child. She has always been taken care of, always thought for, always had somebody to make the decisions for her, and when she is thrown on her own resources she doesn't know what to do and becomes the victim of the sharpers that are always on the lookout for such poor innocents as she.

She is lonesome, and she'll go to live with anyone who asks her. She doesn't know anything about business, and she signs any paper a lawyer will bring her. She is heartbroken, and she is so grateful for sympathy she doesn't look to see how people are taking advantage of her grief to swindle her.

She feels that life is over for her, and it doesn't matter much what she does or where she goes; but this is a cruel mistake, as she finds out in bitterness and tears after she has made it. Many years of life stretch before her in which she can be at least comparatively happy and peaceful, if she has had intelligence enough to choose the right road that leads through the valley of widowhood. And along this road she can have no better mentor than the words of this man, left as a guidance to his own beloved wife.

DON'T SCOLD AN IRRITABLE CHILD

If Tongue Is Coated, Stomach Sour, Breath Feverish, Give "Syrup of Figs" to Clean the Bowels.

Your child isn't naturally cross, irritable and peevish. Mother! Examine the tongue; if coated, it means the little one's stomach is disordered, liver inactive and its thirty feet of bowels clogged with foul, decaying waste.

Every mother realizes after giving delicious "Syrup of Figs" that this is the ideal laxative and physic for children. Nothing else regulates the little one's tender stomach, liver and bowels so effectually, besides they dearly love its delightful fig taste.

For constipated bowels, sluggish liver, biliousness, or sour, disordered stomach, feverishness, diarrhoea, sore throat, bad breath or to break a cold, give one-half to a teaspoonful of "Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the clogged up waste, sour bile, undigested food and constipated matter will gently move on and out of the system without griping or nausea, and you will surely have a well, happy and smiling child again shortly.

With Syrup of Figs you are not drugging your children, being composed entirely of luscious figs, senna and aromatics it cannot be harmful.

Full direction for children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the package.

Ask your druggist for the full name, "Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna," prepared by the California Fig Syrup Co. This is the delicious tasting, genuine old reliable. Refuse anything else offered.

BOWELS SLUGGISH, LIVER TORPID, HEADACHY, BILIOUS?—"CASCARETS"

No odds how bad your liver, stomach or bowels; how much your head aches; how miserable and uncomfortable you are from constipation, indigestion, biliousness and sluggish intestines—you always get the desired results with Cascarets.

Clean your stomach, liver and bowels tonight; end the headache, biliousness, dizziness, nervousness, sick, sour, gassy stomach, backache and all other distress; relieve your torpid liver and constipated bowels of all the sour bile, gases and clogged-up waste which is producing the misery.

A 10-cent box of Cascarets keeps your head clear, stomach sweet, liver and bowels regular and you feel cheerful and bully for months. Don't forget the children—their little insides need a good, gentle, cleansing, too.

DEPENDABLE SECRETS OF BEAUTY AND HEALTH

HOME-MADE FAMILY TONIC—About the most useful and necessary remedy for household use is a good blood purifier and system-tonic. There is none better than Sarsaparilla Compound, made with one ounce hardens and one-half pint sugar dissolved in one-half pint alcohol (not whiskey), then adding hot water to make a quart. A tablespoonful taken before meals purifies the blood, renews lost appetites and energy and regulates the kidneys perfectly. This simple medicine is very strengthening to old people who feel tired and all run down.

TO MAKE THE EYES SPARKLE—Eyes that are dull and expressionless can be made strong, clear and sparkling by putting in each eye twice a day a few drops of a tonic made by dissolving an ounce of sanitol in a pint of cold water. This is very strengthening to the eyesight, and is also splendid for treating granulated lids.

BEST FACE TONIC FOR COMPLEXION—Face powder simply covers up an unattractive complexion for a few hours at most and leaves no lasting benefits. Those who have tried a simple spermaxtone lotion find it much better, as it removes skin discolorations, such as freckles and tan, takes away the skin smooth, white and velvety. This lotion is made by dissolving four ounces of spurmax in one-half pint hot water (or witch hazel), then adding two teaspoonfuls glycerine. This wonderful completion beautifier does not rub off or show like powder, and gives a more refined appearance. It takes away that shiny, sallow look and is an indispensable toilet requisite.

DESTROYS DANDRUFF—A very simple tonic, made by dissolving one ounce quinatone in one-half pint alcohol (not whiskey), adding one-half pint cold water, has been found to be a reliable remedy for ridding the scalp of dandruff and irritation. By applying the tonic to the scalp twice a week, falling hair will soon be stopped and new hair will grow in rapidly.

TO BEAUTIFY EYEBROWS—Rub a little pomade or cocoanut oil into the eyebrows occasionally and they will grow heavy and have a rich gloss. Short, straight eyebrows may be made to grow in curly just by applying a little pomade to the roots with thumb and forefinger and don't go gentle unless no hair is wanted.

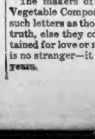
THIS WOMAN'S TROUBLES GONE

Terrible Cramps, Dizzy Spells Nervousness, Misery—Her Story of How She Got Well Again.

Hindsboro, Ill.—"Your remedies have relieved me of all my troubles. I would have such bearing down misery and cramps and such weak, nervous, dizzy spells that I would have to go to bed. Some days I could hardly stay up long enough to get a meal.

"The doctor's medicine did me no good so I changed to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and got good results from the first bottle. I kept on taking it and used the Sanative Wash with it, until I was well again. I think every woman who suffers as I have, could take no better medicine."—Mrs. Charles Mattison, Box 68, Hindsboro, Ill.

Testimony of Trained Nurse.



Cathlamet, Wash.—"I am a nurse and when I do much lifting I have a female weakness, but I take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I cannot say enough in praise of it. I always recommend it for female troubles."—Mrs. Elva Barber Edwards, Box 54, Cathlamet, Wash.

The makers of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound have thousands of such letters as those above—they tell the truth, else they could not have been obtained for love or money. This medicine is no stranger—it has stood the test for years.

Clogged-Up Liver Causes Headache

It's a foolish proceeding to suffer from constipation, sick headache, biliousness, dizziness, indigestion and kindred ailments when CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS will end all misery in a few hours. Purely vegetable. Act gently on liver and bowels.

GENERAL SICKLES IS SUED FOR $5,000

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—General Daniel E. Sickles of Civil War fame is defendant in a suit brought by the Bank of Metropolis to recover $5,000 on a promissory note. Recently the Lincoln Trust Company recovered a judgment of over $8,000 against the general, and the sheriff was about to sell the antiques and other bric-a-brac in the Sickles Fifth avenue residence when Mrs. Sickles, from whom the general had been estranged for a quarter of a century, pledged her jewels and paid the claim.

TO-DAY'S STOCK MARKETS

STATE STREET, Sept. 24 (Midday.)—The Boston market started active and irregular. Among the stocks to advance during the first hour were Amalgamated, Butte & Superior, American Zinc, United Fruit, Calumet & Hecla, Utah Copper and Quincy. In the recessional list were North Butte, Indiana, U. S. Smelting, East Butte, Franklin, Lake and North Lake. Among coppers, Indiana was the most depressed. This Dow stock was off 1½ around 11 o'clock, while North Lake and Franklin were each down ½.

How New York Opened.

When the New York market opened it had a narrow range and the initial movement was towards lower levels on the whole. Some stocks advanced, however. The best gain at the start was by Southern Pacific, but it receded later.

Among the recessions were Steel Common ⅛, Amalgamated ⅜, Reading ⅝, Union Pacific ⅝, Pennsylvania and American Smelting gained ¼. B. & O. and Lehigh Valley were unchanged on their first sales.

The list was somewhat depressed by the failure of the firm of Bell, Dow & Co. It failed to realize from the advances in London caused by speculators buying for the new account which began there.

The Curb was easy.

Americans in London were firm. Canadian Pacific there was sympathetically higher.

Copper Metal Situation.

When the London copper market opened spot and futures were each 5s. lower.

As to the sale of 2,000 tons of spot of copper yesterday at 13.10 cents a pound, it was said in New York this morning: "It became evident early in the day that an upward price movement was imminent when one of the producers withdrew his asking price of 17¼ cents a pound for electrolytic. With the exception of the above mentioned sale at 13.10 cents the market was exceedingly strong at 17¾ cents, but with a condition of buyers' call for the metal which inaugurated the new week and also the possibility of short supplies at that, there is no apparent doubt certain that a new general price level will soon be named, possibly today."

Financial News in Brief.

A Butte dispatch states that the Amalgamated Company will sink a shaft 2,000 feet deep in the Atlanta claim, which lies directly northeast of the East Butte property, because of the recent rich showings in the latter.

United States Treasury conditions yesterday provided as a working balance for the Washington office $80,620,516; banks and Philippine treasury, $33,466,732; total of the general fund, $148,447,881; receipts Saturday, $2,875,719; disbursements, $2,055,072. The receipts from the Cuba fiscal year is $10,005,471, as against a deficit of $19,471,167 at this time last year.

It is now said that rail orders for delivery next year aggregate 500,000 tons. The largest order is 150,000 for the New York Central.

The wholesale prices of beef was raised half a cent a pound by New York packers today and an advance in pork, lamb and mutton is expected within a few days.

A London cablegram states that Baring, G. Reid will sail from Europe for New York tomorrow.

President Samuel L. Felton of the Chicago Great Western Railway says that business prospects in the West are the best in eleven years.

Henri Chaguesaut, a French scientist, has reported at Denver the discovery of rich radium bearing minerals in the vicinity of Meeker, Col. Hitherto the minerals containing the richest apparent radium compound have been found exclusively in Bungey, in Austria and Russia, on the border of Siberia.

It is reported in Washington that Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Bailey will again confer with Secretary Mac-Veagh in New Hampshire today or tomorrow about the advisability of the government making deposits in the national banks.

Regarding the situation between Eastern railroads and their locomotive engineers, Thompson, Towle & Co say: "We learn from an excellent source that the Railroad Arbitration Committee will recommend a small increase in wages for engineers. The report should be made public within the next two weeks."

One of the leading copper interests of the country says: "It has been calculated that electricity has not supplanted more than 3 per cent, but these figures are changing rapidly and eventually it should supplant steam 100 per cent, and there will not be any question as to the demand for copper—it will be a question of supply and price."

CATHOLICS TALK CHARITY PLANS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—Dr. Robert M. Merrick of Boston and Dr. John A. Horgan, President of the Boston Central Council of the St. Vincent de Paul Society, were scheduled to make the principal addresses at today's sessions of the National Conference of Catholic Charities here.

President Taft received the delegates at the White House and told them that their presence suggested the passage we know from Scripture, The greatest of all is charity.'" President Taft said there was no greater work being done for mankind than charity.

Massachusetts delegates present include David F. Tilley, member of the Executive Committee; Rev. M. J. Scanlan of Boston, on the committee on "needy families"; Miss Josephine Bleskie of Brookline and James E. Fee of Boston, both on the committee on dependent children.

EXPECT INCREASE IN PRICE OF BEEF IN BOSTON SOON

An advance in the wholesale price of beef in Boston is threatened, following the one-cent advance in New York yesterday.

Managers of Boston wholesale houses admitted that the supply was short. When asked if they anticipated an advance, they either declined to discuss the issue or stated that time alone could tell.

The pork shortage in this city, according to the marketmen, is not so stringent. The rise in its price during the last three weeks is attributed to a sympathetic movement. This bids fair to continue, if beef prices increase.

GROCERS FORM BIG PARTY ON OUTING

The members of the Boston Retail Grocers' Association and their families are on their twelfth annual excursion to the White Mountains. Six hundred are in the big Boston party, which is now at Fabyans to stay till Thursday. Walking trips, bicycle and horseback touring and driving, card parties, athletic contests—including baseball games for the women—and bowling matches are on the schedule of amusements. Walter K. Hutchinson heads the committee in charge.

DUKE FRANZ JOSEF OF BAVARIA DEAD

MUNICH, Sept. 24.—Duke Frank Josef of Bavaria, brother of the reigning Duke and uncle of the late Duke Karl Theodor, the well-known oculist, is dead from malignant inflammation of the throat. He was twenty-four. Duke Franz Josef began a visit to the United States two years ago, and declined golden opinions regarding the absence of ostentation during his limitation here.

FOREIGNERS FEAR CHINESE REBELS

FOO CHOW, China, Sept. 24.—Failure of government troops to arrive here has caused a state of terror, as the rebel army of police has armed all his malcontents and they are threatening foreigners. American merchants are arming steamers, and if the situation becomes worse will stop business.

BOSTON AMERICAN

80 AND 82 SUMMER ST., BOSTON, SEPTEMBER 24, 1912.

Largest Circulation in New England, DAILY and SUNDAY.

To Seven Hundred and Fifty Citizens of the World a Hundred Thousand Welcomes!

Our Guests Are the TRUE AMBASSADORS OF PEACE, Representing the COMMERCE OF THE WORLD—Civilization Owes a Great Debt to Its Merchants and Traders—Chiefly by Means of Commerce Have Barbarous Nations Become Civilized.

To the AMBASSADORS OF PEACE, the seven hundred and fifty Citizens of the World assembled today for the opening of the Fifth International Congress of Chambers of Commerce and Commercial and Industrial Associations, the AMERICAN bids a HUNDRED THOUSAND WELCOMES.

Five hundred of you come from ABROAD, from the OLDER countries. To YOU, Boston may seem like a NEW city. The first white men who came to New England to stay arrived LESS THAN THREE HUNDRED YEARS AGO.

Two hundred and fifty of you are our NORTH AMERICAN NEIGHBORS. YOU will see in Boston the most famous of the few historic cities of the Republic, rich with well-preserved landmarks of the COLONIAL, the PROVINCIAL and the REVOLUTIONARY periods of our history.

All of you—modern successors of the Phoenicians, kindling our imaginations with the glories of Tyre and Sidon and Carthage—will find here a fine appreciation of all that Commerce MEANS TO CIVILIZATION.

The history of Commerce might well be told, and beautifully, in a PAGEANT.

Our visitors will be too busy for pageantry. They will find their work cut out for them in the DAILY PROGRAM OF THE CONGRESS. Our readers, however, can find pleasure and profit in the construction of such a pageant IN THE MIND. They will know, of course, that our first hint of nations trading together is found in the story of the cruel brethren of Joseph, selling him to a caravan of Ishmaelites conveying their precious commodities into Egypt.

The Phoenicians, building trading ships on the model of their fishing boats—the Phoenicians were the FIRST GREAT NATION OF TRADERS—come NEXT, while Venice was the FIRST EUROPEAN POWER to rise to eminence in commerce.

There is more romance and poetry in commerce than there is in ROMANCE AND POETRY.

May our seven hundred and fifty guests find romance and poetry and inspiration in OLD Boston, in YOUNG Boston—for Boston is BOTH old and young.

And may the YOUNG MEN OF BOSTON—worthy successors of the SOLID MERCHANTS OF OLD, who founded the textile and other industries, built the great Western cities and established the great Western railways—may our young men sit in humility at the foot of these LEADERS IN WORLD-COMMERCE, learning from them lessons to be applied in the building of the NEW Boston which is in every heart.

OUR CITY BELONGS TO OUR GUESTS.

Aux ambassadeurs de la Paix, aux sept cents cinquante citoyens du Monde, assemblés aujourd'hui pour l'ouverture du cinquieme Congres International, des Chambres de Commerce, et des Associations industrielles, l'Americain offre mille fois la bienvenue.

Cinq cents personnes parmi vous venez de l'etranger, des vieux Pays. Boston peut vous sembler une nouvelle ville. Les premiers hommes blancs venus dans la Nouvelle Angleterre pour y demeurer, arriverent il y a moins de trois cents ans. Deux cents cinquante parmi vous etes—nos voisins Americaines du Nord. Vous verrez Boston comme etant une des quelques villes historiques de la republique, riche en places bien conserves de l'epoque coloniale, provinciale, et revolutionaire, de l'histoire de notre Pays.

Vous, tous successeurs des Phenecients, vous embrassez notre imagination des gloires de Tyre, de Sidon, et Carthage, vous trouverez ici une vive appreciation de tout ce que la commerce signifie pour la civilisation. L'histoire du Commerce pourrait etre racontee dans une grand spectacle, avec pompe.

Nos visiteurs seront trop occupes pour voir les spectacles. Leur temps sera arrange d'apres le programme quotidien du Congres. Nos lecteurs cependant peuvent trouver plaisir et profit dans la construction d'un tel spectacle, de l'imagination. Ils sauront, cela va sans dire que notre premiere idee de commerce entre les nations, se trouve dans l'histoire des freres de Joseph le vendant a une caravane d'Ismaelites qui allaient vendre leurs produites en Egypte. Les Phenicians construisant des bateaux pour le transport des merchandises d'apres leur mo dele de leurs bateaux pour la peche. Les Phenicians furent les premiers grands commercants. Venise devint ensuite a la tete du commerce Europeen. Il y a plus de romance et de poesie, dans le commerce que dans le poesie. Que nos sept cents cinquante invitees puissent trouver de la poesie et de l'inspiration dans notre vieux Boston dans notre jeune Boston, car Boston est vieux et jeune aussi; que les jeunes gens de Boston dignes successeure des marchandas d'autrefois, qui ont fonde les industriels Textiles, et autres industries aussi batirent les grandes villes de l'Ouest, et etablirent des grands chemins de fer. Que nos jeunes gens s'asseyait avec humilite aux pieds de ces directeurs du Commerce du Monde, apprenait d'eux les leconqui puissent leur aider a batir le nouveau Boston qu'ils ont tant a coeur.

Notre ville appartient a nos visiteurs.

Unsere Gaeste sind die wahren Gesandten des Friedens—denn sie vetreten den Welthandel—und Kultur und Civilization verdenken dem Kaufmann ja unendlich viel! Dem Handel vor Allem ist es zu danken, dass das Licht der Civilization ueders veite Meer in die Heimstaette barbarischer Nationen gedrungen ist und sie fuer de Kultur empfaenglich gemacht und gewonnen hat.

Den Friedensgesandten, den siebenundert und fuenfzig Buergern der Welt, die heute bei der Eroeffnung des Fuenften Internationalem Kongresses der Handels kammern und der Kaufmaennischen und Industriellen Vereinigungen hier versaminelt sind, entbietet der AMERICAN ein hunderttausendstimmiges WILLKOMMEN!

Fuenfhundert von Euch kommen aus fremden Landern, aus den Laendern der geschichtlichen Vergangenheit, aelter als die unsere, und EUCH mag Boston wie eine neue Stadt erscheinen. Kau dreihundert Jahre sind es her, seit der erste weise Ansiedler sich bleibend in Neuengland niederliess.

Zweihundert und fuenfsig unter Euch sind unsere werten Nachbarn auf dem Kontinent von Nord-Amerika. Euch erinnern wir daran, dass Boston die beruehmteste der wenigen historisch bedeutenden Staete der Republik ist, reich an wohlerhaltennen Kennzeichen aus der Zeit der Kolonialregierung der Provincialeschichte und aus den ruhmreichen Zeiten der Erhebung.

Ihr alle, moderne Nachfolger der Phoenizier, die Ihr uns an die glorreichen Zeiten von Tyrus und Sidon und Karthago erinnert,—Ihr alle findet hier die wahre Wuerdigung der Verdienste des Handels um Kultur und Zivilisation.

Aber unsere Gaeste sind zu beschaeftigt fuer derartiges; das taegliche Programm des Kongresses enthaelt genug um Ihr Interesse zu fesseln, um Ihre Taetigkeit in Anspruch zu nehmen. Aber vielleicht schiest wie in einem Kaleidoskop vor dem geistigen Auge unserer Leser das Bild eines solchen. Festzugs zusammen, wo als erstem unter den handelstreibenden Staemmen jene Ismaeliten erscheinen, deren Karawne mit koestlichem Gute beladen auf dem Zeg nach Aegypten begriffen ist und an die die grausamen Bruder Josephs ihn varkauften.

Die Phoenicier, die Handelsschiffe nach dem Muster ihrer Fischerboote bauten, waren die wirklichen ersten Kaufherren, waebrend auf dem Kontinent von Europa, Venedig, die Koenigin der Adriatik, die erste Macht war, die ihr Szepter machtvoll im Handel und Verkehr schwang.

Sicherlich, selbst Romantik und Poesie sind nicht so reich an wirklicher Romantik und an wirklicher Poesie, wie es der Handel ist.

Hoffen wir, dass auch unsere siebenhundert und fuenzig willkommenen Gaeste Romantik und Poesie und Anregung finden im alten Boston, im jungen Boston—denn Boston ist alto sowohl als jung.

Moegen die jungen Maenner Bostons—als wuerdige Nachkommen des alten soliden Kaufleute, die die Textil-Industrie und so vielendere Industrieen begruendeten, die die grossen Staedte des Westens gruendeten und die grossen Schienenwege des Westens legten, moegen sie andacchtig den Worten der fuehrenden Geister auf dem Gebiet des Welthandels lauschen und von ihnen die Lehren annehmen, die beim Aufbau des NEUEN BOSTONS, dessen Wohl uns allen am Herzen liegt, wahren und duernden Erfolg darbieten.

El AMERICAN extiende la mas cordial bienvenida a los setecientos cincuenta ciudadanos del mundo que se reunen hoy para inaugurar el Quinto Congreso International de Camaras de Comercio y Asociaciones Industriales.

Quinientos de vosotros venis de tierras estranjeras, de los paises mas antiguos. A vosotros os parecera Boston una nueva ciudad. El primer hombre blanco que vino a Nueva Inglcterra para permancer aqui llego hace menos de trescientos anos.

Doscientos cincuenta de vosotros sois nuestros vecinos de Norte-America. Vosotros vereis en Boston las mas famosa de las pocas ciudades historicas de la republica, rica en reliquias coloniales y de los periodos provincial y de la revolucion de nuestra historia.

Vosotros todos, modernos sucesores de los Fencios, trajendo a nuestras imaginaciones las glorias de Tiro, Sidon y Cartago, encontrareis aqui un magnifico ejemplo de todo lo que el comercio significa para la civilizacion.

Nuestros visitantes estaran muy ocupados para procesiones. Encontraran su trabajo en el progama diario del congreso. Nuestros lectores, no obstante, pueden encontrar placer y provecho en concebir en sus imaginaciones una procesion de tal clase. Sabran de seguro que la primera intimacion de intercambio entre naciones que encontramos en la historia fue la cruel venta de Jose por sus hermanos a la caravana de los ismaelites que iban a Ejipto.

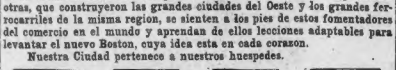
Nuestros ancestros construyendo sus naves para el comercio siguiendo los modelos de sus botes de pesca fueron los primeros grandes mercaderes. Venecia fue el primer poder Europeo que se engrandecia por su comercio.

Hay mas romance y poesia en comercio que en romance y poesia.

Deseamos que nuestros setecientos cincuenta huespedes encuentren romance, poesia e inspiracion el antiguo y en el nuevo Boston, pues Boston as antiguo y nuevo al mismo tiempo.

Deseamos asimismo que nuestros jovenes de Boston, dignos sucesores de los comerciantes de antano que fundaron las industrias textil y muchos otras, que construyeron las grandes ciudades del Oeste y los grandes ferrocarriles de la misma region, se sienten a los pies de estos fomentadores del comercio en el mundo y aprendan de ellos lecciones adaptables para levantar el nuevo Boston, cuya idea esta en cada corazon.

Nuestra Ciudad pertenece a nuestros huespedes.



Ai messaggieri di pace, i settecentocinquanta cittadini del mondo riuniti oggi per l'inaugurazione del quianto congresso internazionale delle camere di commercio ed associazioni commerciali ed industriali, l'AMERICAN estende centomila "benvenuto."

Cinquecento di voi siite venuti da olbre oceano, dalle vecchi e nazioni. A voi, Boston sembrera una nuova citta. Il primo uomo di razza caucasea giunse nella nuova Inghilterra meno di Arecoanto anni fa. Duecentocinquanta di voi siete vicini a noi Nord Americani; voi vedrite in Boston una delle piu istoriche citta della republica, famosa per i suoi punti ben-preservati, che ricordano i periodi della nostra storia coloniale, provinciale i della rivolicjione.

Tutti voi, moderni successori dei Phoenici, che stimulate le nostre immaginazioni con le glorie di "Tyre," Sidone e Cartagine Arovente qui sutto l'apprezzamento di quello che il commercio significa per la civilta.

La storia del commercio protrebbe descriversi magnificamente in un torneostorico.

I nostri ospiti son troppo occupati per tornei storici. Essi Aroveranno limitato il loro larno dai programmi giornalieri del congresso. I nostri lettori, ad agui modo, Aroveranno piacue e profitto nella costruzione di Aale Aornco nelle loromenti. Essi sapranno, certamente, che il principio del commercio delle nazioni ebbe origine nella storia, allorchi i fratelli crudeli di Guiseppe lo vendcrono ad una carovana di Ismaeliti che trasportavaro i loro preziosi oggetti nell' Egitto.

I Phenici — costruendo i loro batelli di commercio sui modelli delleloro barche da pesca—I Phenici furons i primi della grande nazione commerciale mentre Venezia fu la prima citta d'Europa ad elevarsi aminentemente in Commercio.

Vi i piu prosa e poesia in Commercio che non vi sia prosa e poesia in loro stesso.

E possano i giovani di Boston—degni successori elli solidi vecchi mercanti, i quali fondarono le industrie Aessili, e molte altre che fondarono li grandi citta e le immense ferronie dell'ovest possano i nosti giovaire umilmente sedere ai fiedi del quest copi del mondo commerciali, apprendendo da essi lezioni da applicarsi fer l'eleramanto della nuova Boston, che i nel coure di tutti. La citta nostra appartiene ai nostri aspiti.
